Strong family ties and a progressive outlook keep the farm business rolling at the Titus Beam Farm in northwestern Chester County. Beam, above, appreciates his family farming operation and recently made some changes to conserve costs and energy.

Harmony and efficiency keep Beam's future in focus

By DIETER KRIEG

ELVERSON — Titus Beam, a Chester County pork producer, is counting on old traditions and new management practices to keep pace with an increasingly competitive swine industry. Appreciative of family ties and aware of ever-increasing energy costs, Beam strives for uncommon harmony and efficiency in his business.

With his wife, Violet, and three children by his side, and the cooperation of his brother, Omar, the Beams farm 300 acres and fatten 1500 hogs and 200 head of cattle annually.

Strong family ties are only a part of Beam's strategy for better business. He is also a strong believer in cost-saving ideas. His recent

LeHi drops refinancing plan

- ALLENTOWN — The Board of Directors of Lehigh Valley Cooperative Farmers Wednesday withdrew the recapitalization proposal that its farmer members have been considering for several weeks.

In a letter sent to farmers Wednesday, Chairman Alpheus L. Ruth said,"It is evident that we do not have the clear commitment necessary to proceed. I have talked with 650 of our 900 members; although the majority of them are in favor of the plan, many are concerned about the possible economic hardship on our smaller and younger members."

Ruth indicated that the dairy expects to make a minimun profit of a half-million dollars in the next six months. He pointed out that many members felt that they should enjoy several profitable years before making decisions about the retirement of the company's stock.

The proposal had called for the redemption of nearly

Knight wins Holstein show

By DIETER KRIEG

HARRISBURG — Paul Knight, an 18-year old York County Holstein exhibitor, has captured four grand championship titles in less than two weeks. His latest and most prestigious victory came here on Wednesday when his All-American 4-year old, Northcroft Ella Elevation, was named grand champion of the South-central Champion Holstein Show. The event was held here at the Farm Show Complex.

Knight is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Knight Jr., whose "Woodbine Holsteins" are well known in Holstein circles around the country.

The young exhibitor's recent string of triumphs in the show circuit began two weeks ago at the York Fairgrounds where both the County and 4-H Holstein shows were held. Paul and Ella won both. A third vic-

Potato harvest looks good

By KENDACE BORRY

LITITZ — Just about all of the early potatoes in the area are harvested, according to reports received by Lancaster Farming and the crop looks "good".

In fact, potato farmers are pretty optomistic about the entire potato crop this year, saying that they hope for a good harvest, especially having high quality in the pototoes they're bringing in. The potatoes seen so far, have been good sized and of good quality, and yield per acre has been anywhere from average to what a potato farmer will simply call "very good".

George Wolfe, Stewartstown R2, in York County, related that his early crop was what he termed good, and he still has about ten acres left to harvest of that crop. He has around 150 acres planted in the different varieties of potatoes and he noted that he was happy with

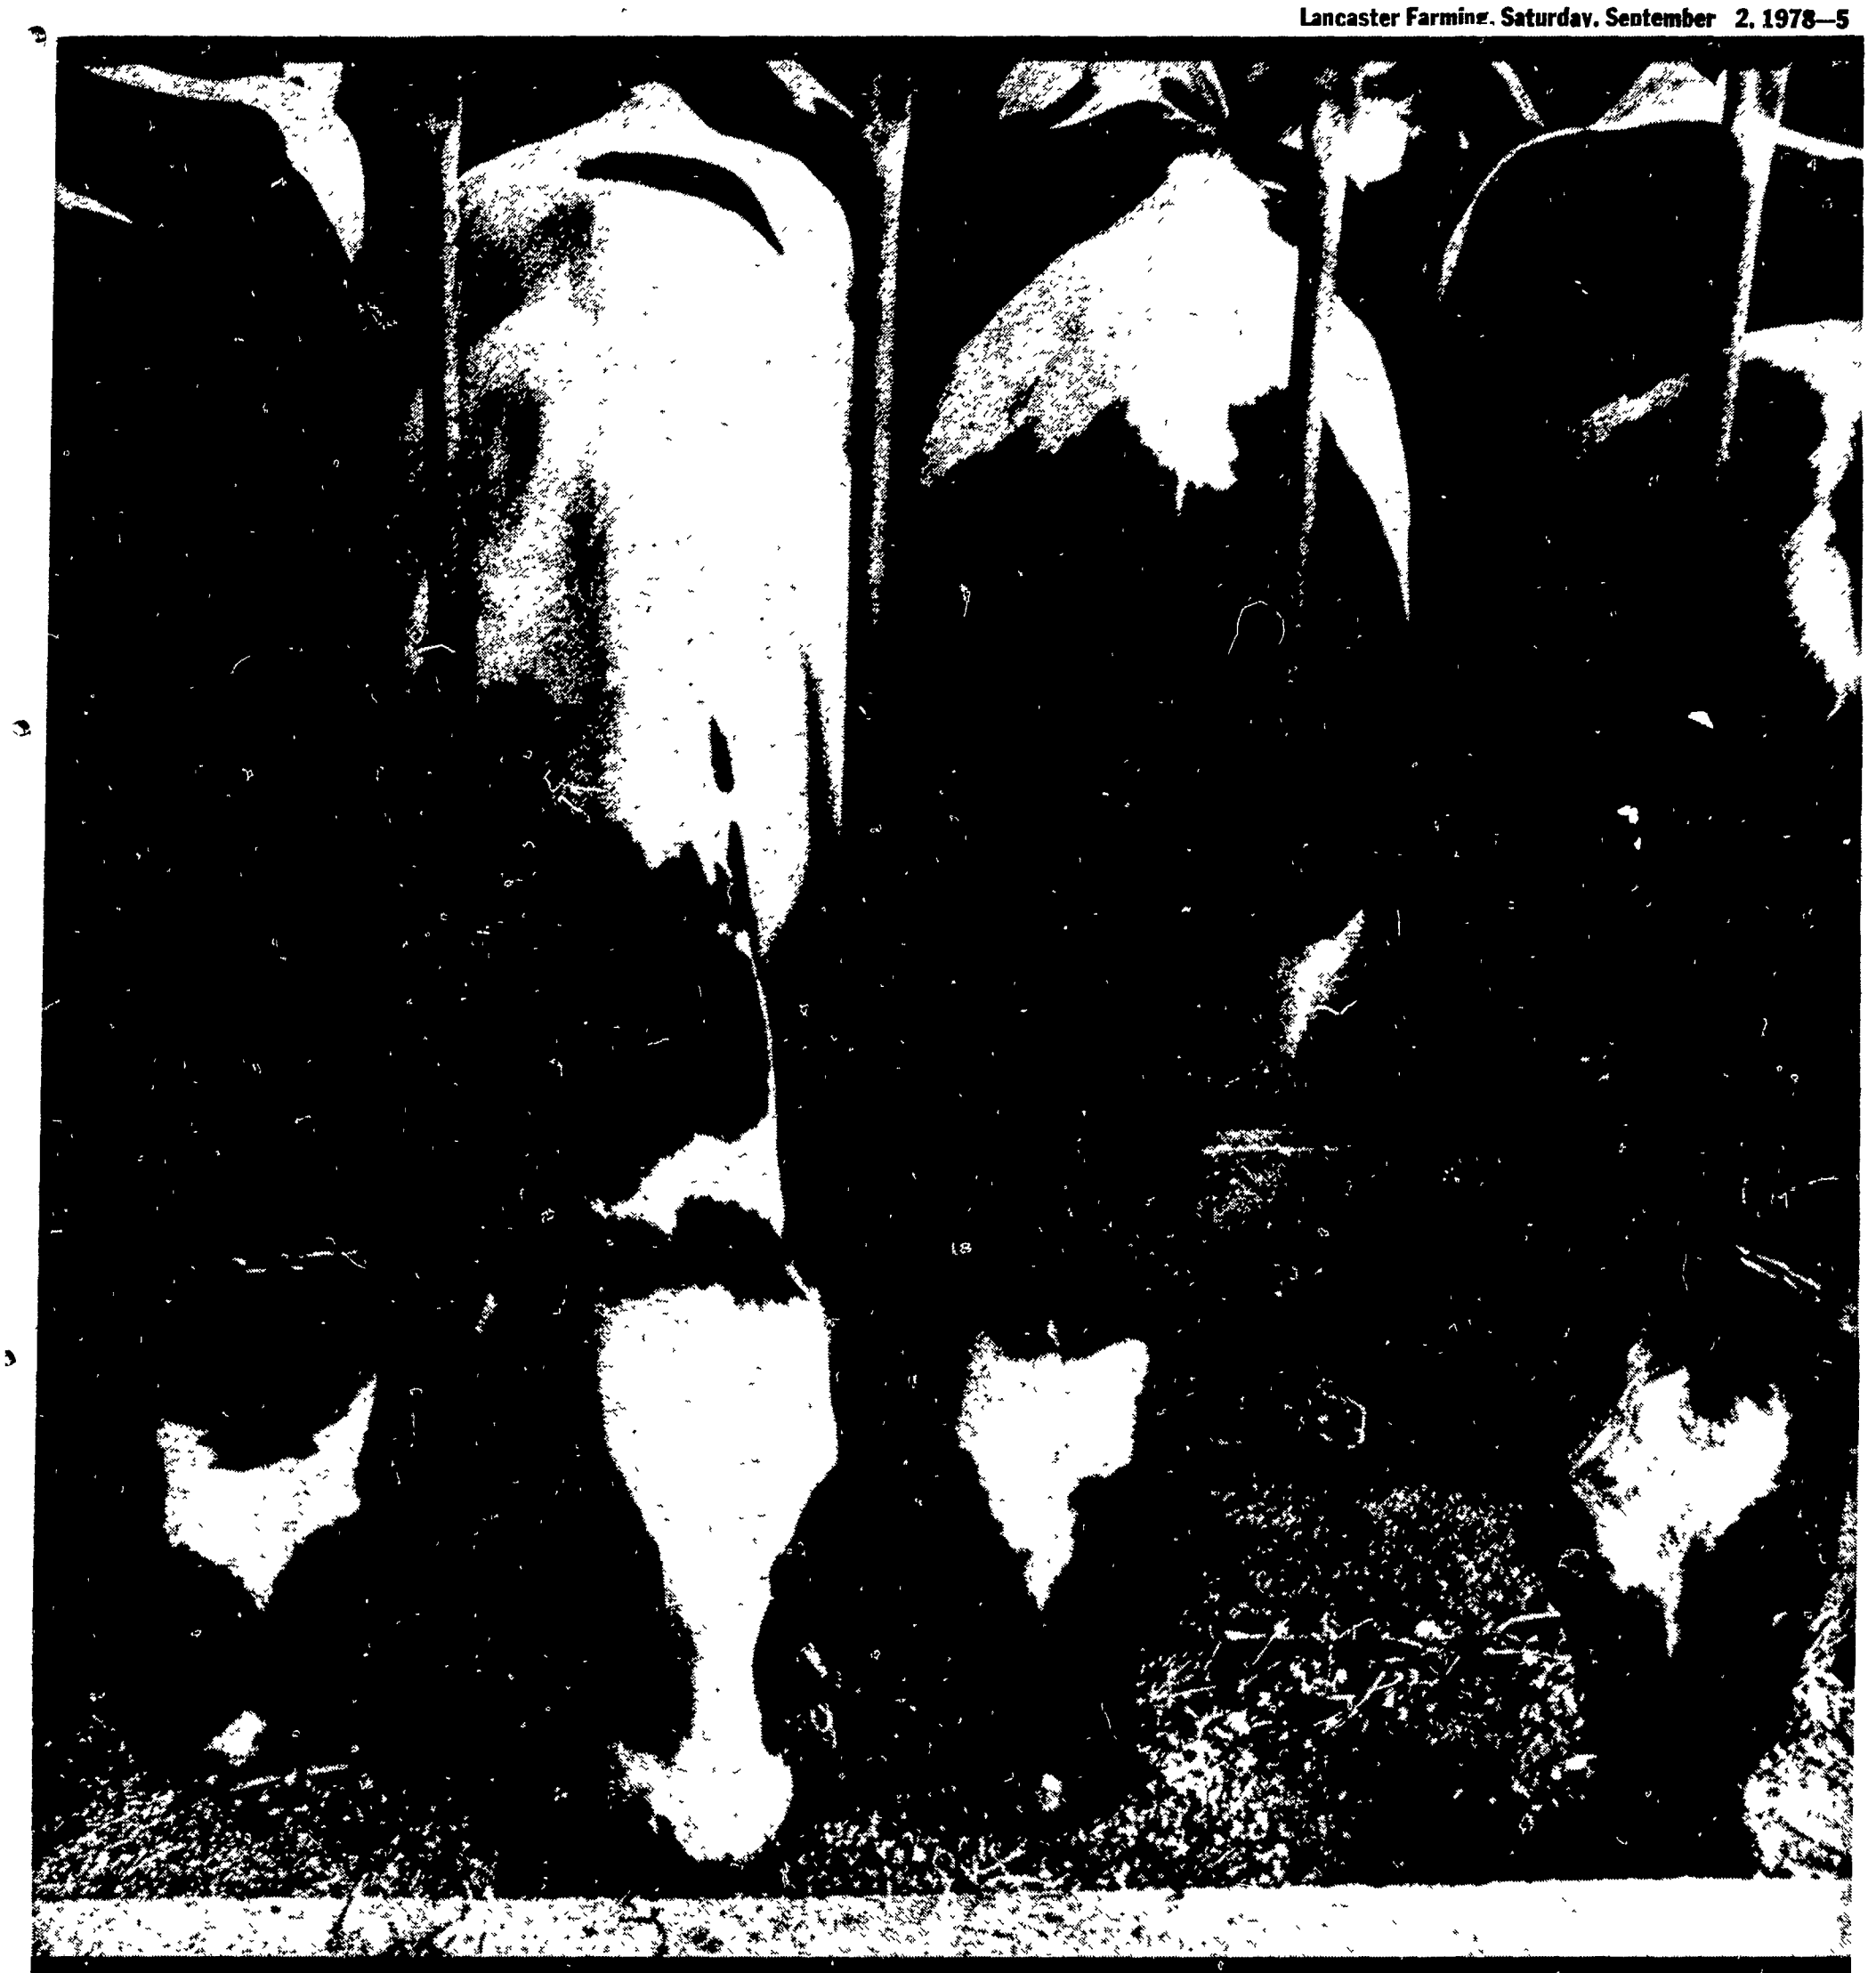
HUBBARD WHITE MT. BROILERS



From calf to cow, we formulate feeds and feeding programs with your profit in mind.

Are you in the dairy business to stay?

Are you ready to devote an hour or so of your time planning for a more profitable future?

If your answer to both questions is yes, you owe it to yourself to read what we have to say.

Unlike many other feed companies, we develop custom feeding programs for each individual dairy.

It all starts with a Pennfield man reviewing your total operation with you. Your goals. Your records. The health and overall condition of your milking cows and young stock. Your management practices. Your roughage feeding program. And other factors that have an effect on your profit potential.

We also conduct laboratory analysis of the roughages you feed to determine their nutrient content.

With the aid of computers, we then design a balanced feeding program specifically tailored to your operation and goals—a program that can improve your profits by reducing expenses, increasing production, or both.

For example, while using a Pennfield customized feeding program, 30 herds this past year averaged 1,688 lbs. more milk and 64 lbs. more fat per cow than the previous year.

There is no cost—or obligation—for this unique service. But you must take the first step by writing or phoning us. Do it today.

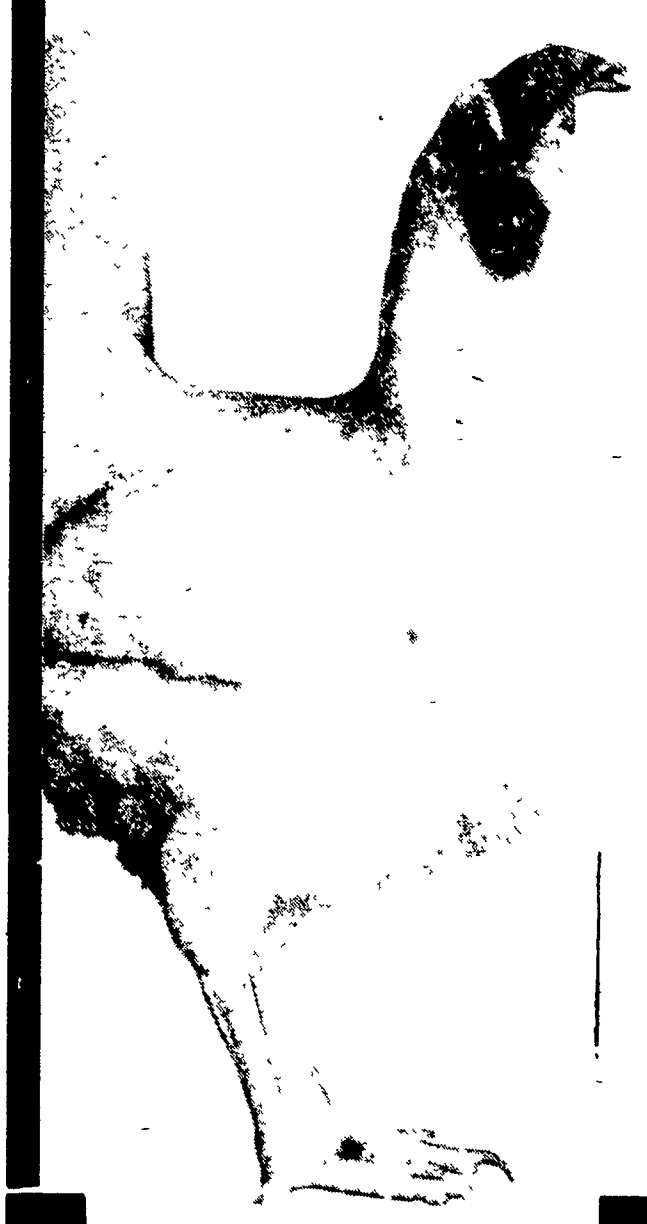
Babcock's B-300V:

The layer that's never been beaten in Pennsylvania Random Sample Testing.

What characteristic do you look for in the layer you buy? High production numbers or efficient feed conversion? Large eggs or low mortality?

Why not pick the layer with the balanced performance that means profit for Pennsylvania egg producers — the Babcock B-300V.



In her very first year of testing, Babcock's B-300V swept the 20th Pennsylvania Random Sample Test, with the highest IOFCC for both divisions - cage and floor.

Test results below confirm field reports we've been receiving on the B-300V's outstanding performance - top egg production, great livability, competitive feed conversion, legendary resistance to stress, plus strong, beautiful shells.

Project Clearwater

They did 5 years' work in one day

Editor's Note: Project Clearwater was a massive undertaking to turn a neglected farm into one which would serve as a model for conservation. This is one of a series of reports on that work.

FREDERICK, Md. – The number 13 may be considered unlucky by some But for Warren Roelkey the 13 conservation practices installed on his farm August 19 were a dream come true.

The 245-acre Roelkey farm at the base of South Mountain, was selected by the Catoctin Soil Conservation District as the site for Porject Clearwater, an immense undertaking to show how a farm can be upgraded from a hopeless condition to one which is totally environmentally sound.

Between sunup and sundown on that day, 500 volunteers and 200 pieces of equipment from near and afar transformed the rundown farm into a model agricultural operation.

OUR WORST SUBJECT

Lesson for September 3, 1978

Background Scripture:
Romans 1:18-20, 24-25;
2 Timothy 2:21-26
Devotional Reading:
John 8:31-36

Reprimanded because his report indicated an "E" in "discipline," little Billy shrugged his shoulders and replied: "I can't help it — it's my worse subject!"

Actually, discipline is the "worst subject" for many of us. Discipline is a term that indicates the degree to which a person is able to govern him or herself. It is the manner in which we control our behaviour. A person who is undisciplined is one who is not fully in the driver's seat.

Serving The Creature

The newspapers and other media are full of reminders that discipline is our "worst subject." Our daily paper carries advertisements of some dozen weight-reducing establishments in this community. Business is booming, I'm told Our local television stations carry commercials by several local organizations that attempt to assist the smoker to stop smoking A highway billboard displays prominently a telephone number that can be called by anyone who wants to inquire about an intensive program to help the problem drinker. Among my daily junkmail are advertisements for classes in Yoga, "mind control," meditation and a host of other programs aimed at the person who is trying to get a grip on his own life

My wife and I follow a daily routine of rising at 6 a.m., walking two miles, eating breakfast and following with twenty minutes of prayer and meditation and another twenty of physical exercise. It is not a very ambitious program, in fact, in our minds it is a minimal effort Yet the awe with which some people react when they hear us speak of it is always surprising to us It is, we have decided, not so much a tribute to our discipline, but a commentary on their own lack of it.

Bodies Dishonoured

Some people simply cannot conceive of making themselves do anything. There is no self-control exercised over their appetites and they seem to have an absolute compulsion to cater to every whim, fancy and appetite that comes their way. For our age the words of the writer of 2 Timothy seem archaic: "If anyone purifies himself from what is ignoble, then he will be a vessel for noble use, consecrated and useful..." (2:21). Few of us think of ourselves as "noble vessels," yet it may well be that this lack of self-discipline and consecration is the very thing that makes life so frantic in these "sophisticated" days in which we live. Speaking of this need, Robert Raines has said: "We must lay hands of gentle ruthlessness on ourselves, eliminating some things in order to intensify others. It is necessary to prune our lives if they are to bear more fruit." Until we have learned to do this, discipline will continue to be our "worst subject."

NOW IS THE TIME

TO PLAN FOR QUALITY CORN SILAGE

The corn crop is maturing and looks very good. Many dairy and cattle feeders will be making tons of corn silage. This is one of the most economical feeds for livestock when it is made properly. The first thing is to permit it to mature sufficiently; the moisture range of the entire stalk should be from 62 to 70 per cent; this will be in the full dent stage on many varieties.

Silage that is chopped fine and put into the silo rapidly will make the best feed; refilling should be done within 48 hours to prevent top spoilage Protein content of the silage can be increased through the use of some non-protein material such as urea; about 10 pounds per ton of silage is suggested Extra preservatives should not be needed in a good silo

TO GIVE ALFALFA A CHANCE

Many crop authorities suggest that we do not cut alfalfa here in southeastern Pennsylvania during the first part of September. This is a period when the plants are developing rhizomes for next year's growth. To disturb this development will result in less rhizomes and less growth next year Cuttings made late in September or early October after colder weather are suggested as a way to get the final cutting

The application of a phosphorus-potash fertilizer this fall is strongly suggested. On stands that have been established earlier this year, from which one or two cuttings have already been made, it is favored to allow the present growth to remain on the field over winter. This will give some added protection to the plants the first winter.

TO REALIZE SHORTAGE OF STRAW

Bedding materials are worth more money in recent years than top-quality forage was several years ago This indicates that every pound of straw is a good farm product whether to be sold or used on the farm.

Most Winter grain crops add to the straw supply; barley and wheat straw are very much in demand. In some cases winter rye has been planted as a straw crop next spring before the rye ripens. This will still permit a full-season crop to be planted to the rye field Fields of continuous corn might still produce a winter rye straw crop next spring before time to plant corn

TO PREVENT INFECTION

Cattle feeders are on the alert for a place to market their good corn crop. Those who are bold enough to buy at this time and find the kind of cattle wanted, should make every effort to keep them healthy. I'm thinking of the infection called "Red Nose" that is quite common in this part of the state.

This respiratory trouble is highly contagious and once in the barn or feedlot, it remains there for years. If there has been trouble on the farm, then it is very important that every animal be treated for the infection upon arrival.

In most cases a nasal vaccine can be used. We suggest that feeders consult their local veterinarian for preventative treatment. Also, strict sanitation practices should be used. Be careful about your own footwear after visiting public livestock places.

Harmony and efficiency

innovations include an energy efficient Nebraska Unit to house an additional 580 hogs for fattening, and a feeding program which will eliminate grain drying. Beam claims that there is too much upkeep involved with more conventional swine housing facilities, especially with ventilation systems, and that drying corn at 12 or 13 cents per bushel is getting to be prohibitive. That's why he's switching to high moisture corn, to be stored in an air-tight, glass-lined storage structure. When the corn comes out for feeding it'll go through a roller or crimper, thus eliminating not only the costs of drying, but grinding as well.

The new facilities are being featured in an Open House next Saturday, Sept 9

Despite the new innovations and sizeable investments, Beam is placing considerable trust and appreciation in old customs and lifestyles. He's a family man and a family farmer.

"Knowing that my wife and boys are all interested in farming keeps me motivated," Beam said while helping his wife shell lima beans. "It would go harder for me if my wife and children were not interested in the farm. I would find it hard to build or expand, or even to just keep going," he said with sincerety. Reaching for more lima beans, the Chester Countian added:

"The boys have really taken hold. There's no assurance yet that they'll stay on the farm, but at least they're interested. Bill, 18, will be a college freshman this year, majoring in beef and hog production. He has been a 4-H member for nine years and was named a champion showman for five of those years. Doug, 17, was a champion showman last year."

"As a family we work together and help each other. It's one of the advantages of living on a farm," Beam observed.

"If my wife needs help, I help her, and if I need help - with the hogs or hay - she helps me." Noticeably appreciative of his family, Beam has special praise for his wife's character and willingness to help.

"I really like farm life," his wife remarked during the conversation beneath the stately trees which surround the Beams' home. Explaining that she was raised in a city, she added that she much prefers country living and work to the lifestyle of city folks. A major reason is that their children are receiving the opportunity to grow up learning appreciation for Nature and responsibilities of life. As she spoke, the Beams' youngest son, Brian, 6, was playing baseball on the lawn.

Beam recognized that his wife, who moved 2500 miles away from home, had adapted very well to the changes and work loads involved in farm life.

Working closely with his brother, Omar, who has his own farm 1½ miles away, has been most helpful, Beam continued. "My brother and I help each other out a lot," he explained. "It works out real well for us. With the high cost of equipment these days and the fact that it sits around in the shed for all but a few days of the year, it makes sense to share expenses and machinery. We share hay-making and silo-filling equipment. I'd like to see more people work together - brothers, neighbors, or fathers and sons."

A 4-H leader in Chester County, Beam puts great emphasis on family farming and he is pleased to say that his entire farm is operated in that fashion. He hesitatingly remarks, however, that it's a lifestyle which is facing considerable pressures from other forms of business. He

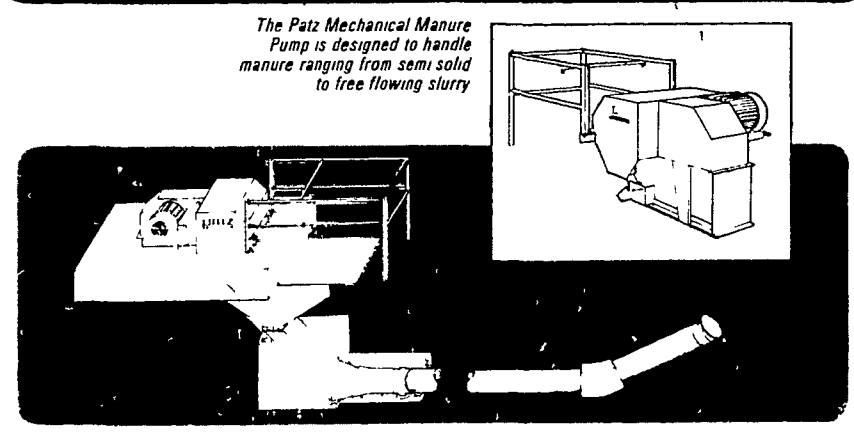
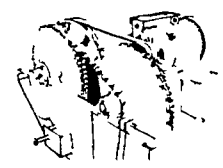
introducing the all new PATZ slurry manure pump

The Patz Mechanical Manure Pump is designed to handle manure ranging from semi solid to free flowing slurry

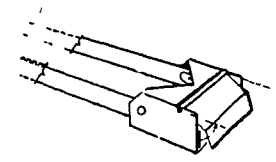


The Patz Slurry Manure Pump provides the ultimate solution to the moving of slurry liquid manure from dairy, beef, hogs or poultry installations to manure storage facilities

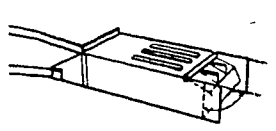
The new Patz Slurry Pump can move slurry and liquids up to 150 feet. The manure is supplied to an underground hopper with a gutter cleaner or scraper and is forced into a 12 inch P V C pipe by means of an 8 inch by 15 inch plunger



A 10 h.p. electric motor running a roller chain reduction unit drives the plunger at a rate of 21 strokes per minute. The Patz exclusive roller chain drive unit is the most efficient way to transmit a smooth flow of power (Shown with guard removed)



The 8 inch by 15 inch plunger has a one way valve in the sleeve which closes on the forward stroke forcing the manure into the storage facility and opens on the backward stroke for the next load



Plunger sleeve can be removed from sleeve chamber for servicing without breaking out concrete. Valve in the sleeve and flapper valve at the end of the pipe prevent manure from returning

4-H district colored breed champions chosen

HARRISBURG — At the 11th annual South Central District 4-H Dairy Show, many winners were picked in the colored breeds division of the show. Held August 29 at the Farm Show Building, Champions were chosen throughout the morning's classes.

In the Ayrshire division, the senior champion, Karen D. Schmuck, Peach Bottom R2, was named the grand champion of that breed. She showed an animal in the three and four year old class, Pineland Pride's Buttons, and this is her third year to be chosen champion at the District show.

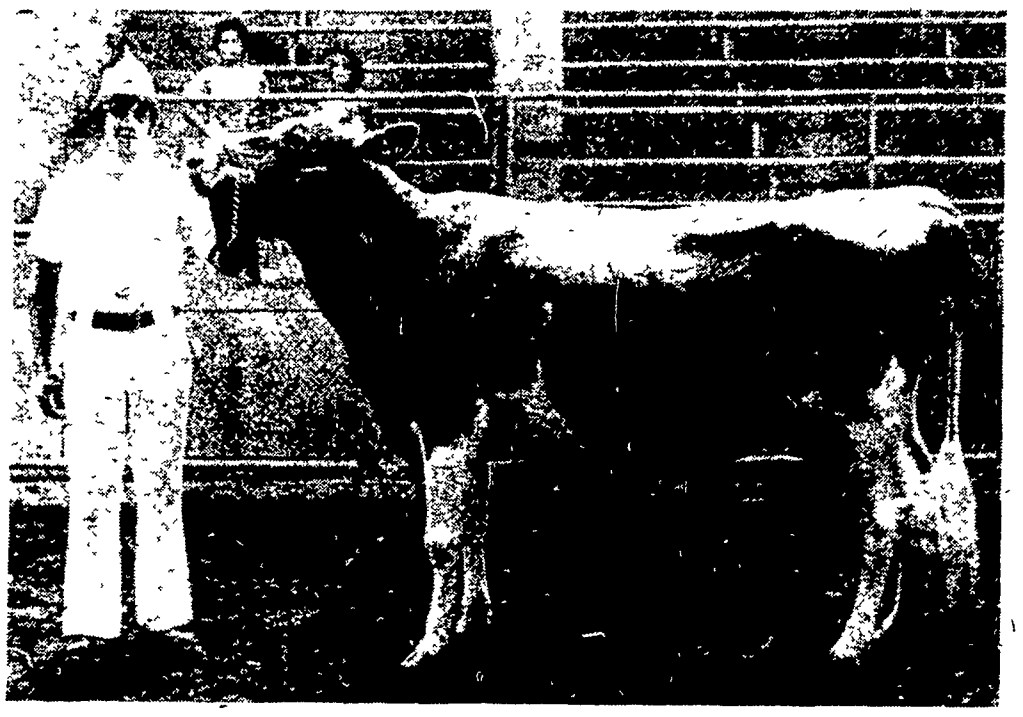
Her sister, Sandra Lee Schmuck, showed the junior champion, Cove Creek Victorys Vel, a senior yearling. It was named the reserve champion of the breed.

For the second year in a row, David E. Feidt, Millersburg R1, took his Brown Swiss Rainy Design Rochele, to be named grand champion in the Brown Swiss breed. The animal competed in the three and four year old class. David, the 13year old son of Mr. and Mrs Eugene Feidt, bred the animal himself.

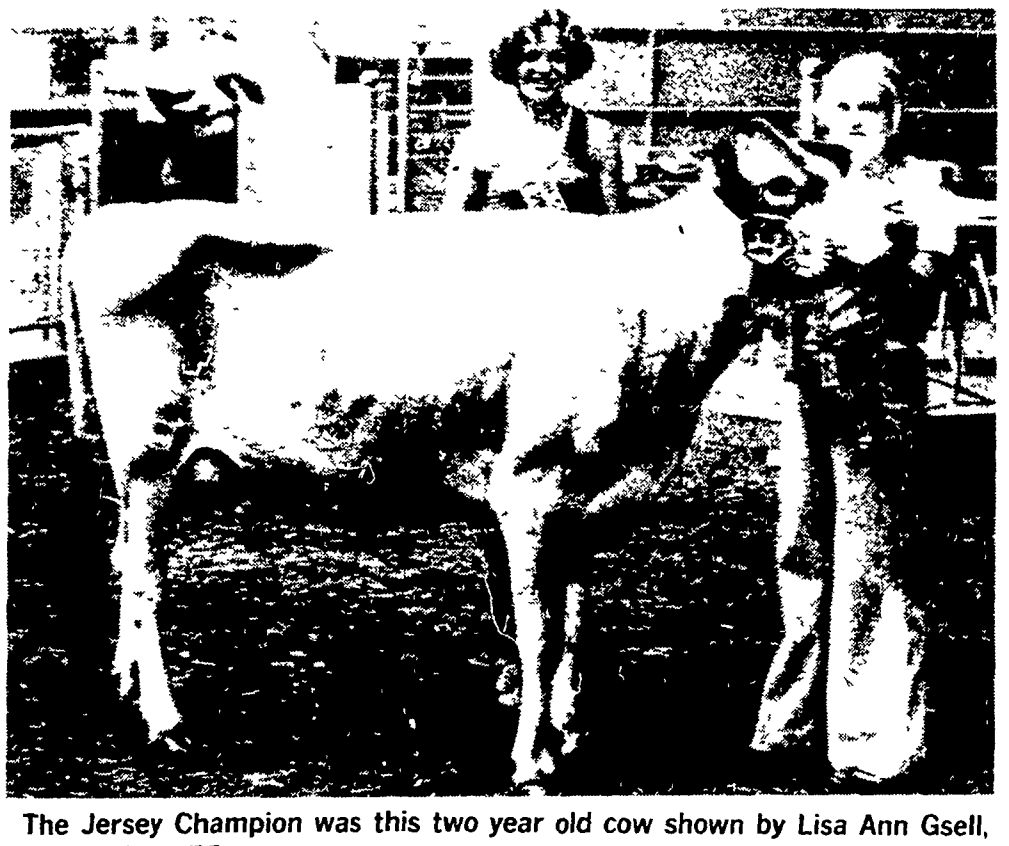
The reserve champion in the Brown Swiss also came from the senior division, with Katherine Feidt, the 17 year old sister of David, taking that prize with her aged cow, High Spruce Beautician Nora.

Mike Welsh, East Berlin R1, showed the junior champion, and Kevin S. Laughman, Thomasville R2, showed the reserve junior champion.

The Guernsey grand champion was shown by John Willard Moore, Chambersburg R2. The 19 year old 4-H'er showed Spring Garden Flashs Royal, and he had won the reserve championship with her last year. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Vaughn Moore.



Showing his cow in the 5 year and over class, John Willard Moore, Chambersburg R2, won the championship in the Guernsey competition at the 4-H dairy district show.



The Jersey Champion was this two year old cow shown by Lisa Ann Gsell, Chambersburg R5.

'Tina Rutter's animal, which was shown by her sister Cindy, was named reserve champion. The York County girl showed in the three and four year old class, with her cow Rutter Bros. Pals Faith.

Junior Champion was Douglas B. Rohrer, Lancaster. Reseve junior champion went to the junior yearling shown by Jeffrey Benedict, Waynesboro R1.

Lisa Ann Gsell, Chambersburg R5, showed the senior and grand champion in the Jersey breed division. The 15 year old daughter of Mr. and mrs. Paul Gsell showed the two year old Pine Mountain Surville Martha Reserve champion also came from the senior divison, ans was shown by Dawn M. Ridinger, Biglerville R2. Now 16, the daughter of Mr. and mrs. Irwin Ridinger, had the reserve champion last year.

Gail E Bukowski had the junior Jersey champion while her brother Patrick Bukowski showed the reserve champion. Both reside near Mount Joy

You save money, day after day, with corn-soy and Vigortone.

Want to save money on your swine rations? When you take charge of ration content and quality, you start saving from the very first day.

To take charge of ration content, buy only what you don't grow on your own farm Then, grind and mix the rations yourself — fresh — from pre-starter through finishing. You'll never have to worry about freshness again. Better yet, these steps alone eliminate several middle-man costs and handling fees

To take charge of ration quality, follow Vigortone fortified corn-soy feeding programs. Vigortone swine pre-mixes assure that your rations always contain proper levels of major minerals, trace elements, vitamins, and other nutrients. In addition, corn-soy and Vigortone furnish the right level and balance of all essential amino acids

This simple approach keeps your out-of-pocket feed costs low. What's more, it actually promotes better feed conversion for lower cost of gain.

Your figures will prove it.

Now is the time to compare.
See your Vigortone dealer soon. He's ready to compare the performance of Vigortone's low-cost swine feeding programs with any other you name.

York 4-H'er wins District Holstein show

HARRISBURG — Four-H'ers from York County took the lead in the 11th annual Southcentral District 4-H Holstein Dairy Show, held here Tuesday at the Farm Show Complex. The ring event was won by York Countian Paul Knight, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Knight Jr., Airville R2, while fellow club members captured some of the lesser rosettes and ribbons. In addition, they won the county group contest.

The Knight family has won wide acclaim and recognition throughout the country with their Woodbine Holsteins. Young Knight's grand champion here on Tuesday did not carry the famous Woodbine prefix, however. Rather, she is an animal which he purchased three years ago at the Wintercrest Sale in New York State. An Elevation daughter, Northcroft Ella Elevation won several championships within the past week, including the York County Open Holstein Show and the Southcentral Championship Show. (See story on page 1).

Placing as reserve senior and reserve grand champion was Amply Rag Apple Nellie, an aged cow exhibited by Christine Gitt. She was grand champion here a year ago and has been catching considerable attention for a number of show seasons. Both Miss Gitt and Nellie have been making names for themselves in Holstein circles for years. Miss Gitt, 16, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Gitt, Littlestown.

The contest's junior champion belonged to Paul Cashell, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Cashell, Chambersburg R6. At the halter of Ni-Crete Comap Flame, he bested an entry exhibited by Jan Horst, owner of the reserve junior champion animal. Knight wins Holstein show tory came when Ella stood first at the 11th annual Southcentral District 4-H Dairy Show on Tuesday.

Despite strong competition from such perennial grand champions like Andfar Astronaut Cinderella and Amply Rag Apple Ormsby Nellie, Knight's cow came out on top again on Wednesday. Not surprisingly, the extraordinary tall and powerful cow has been winning shows for Knight since he purchased her three years ago at the Wintercrest Sale in New York State.

A year ago, as an All-American 3-year old, Ella stood first in her class at the World Dairy Exposition in Madison, Wis. On the production end, she has a 365-day record of over 31,000 pounds of milk and 1100 pounds o butterfat. She is sired by Round Oak Rag Apple Elevation.

A 1978 graduate of Kennard-Dale High School, Knight will begin studies at Penn State this Fall. His major will be dairy science, and someday he hopes to have his own farm and 60 or 70 head of registered Holsteins. He is already very much involved with the home herd. He and his older brother, George, have taken over many of the management responsibilities of the family's 300 head of Holsteins, and according to him, the herd average has improved significantly. Their current average is up over 15,000 pounds of milk and around 580 pounds of butterfat, he said.

A modest young man who stands 6 feet, 1 inch tall, Knight credits his show circuit experiences for his strong interest in registered Holsteins and the dairy business in general. He exhibited some of his animals at major shows around the U.S. and Canada and several of them have received All-Pennsylvania status

He is a 10-year member of the Milk-and-Money 4-H Club, led by Paul King of Delta.

Robert Kauffman, a Lancaster County Holstein breeder, whose Penn-Springs Holsteins are also well known, exhibited the reserve grand champion of the show. She is Andfar Astronaut Cinderella, a cow which will soon be seven years old. She has a long and consistent string of victories to her credit, having numerous county and district titles.

Kevin Laughman, son of Mr. and Mrs Phil Laughman, Thomasville, was another one of the "junior exhibitors" who came out on top during the keen contest. His junior calf by Elevation was picked by judge Don Seipt of Easton as junior champion Placing second to her was a senior yearling Elevation daughter owned and exhibited by Beth Waybright of Gettysburg. She, too, is a 4-H exhibitor

In the bull contest, Paul Dyarman of Shippensburg exhibited the champion, a year-old son of Jaomis Marquis Bonavan. The reserve honor went to an August 1977 bull calf sired by Elevation and owned by Ken Sellers of Lebanon

Following are female class placings:

Special recognition for the show's success was given to the following:

Atlantic Breeders Cooperative, for providing the public address system, hats, and show announcer; Milton Hershey Farms, for providing hay and straw; New Holland Farm Machinery Company, for underwriting the cost of the catalog. In addition to financial contributions, help was also acknowledged from Inter-State Milk Producers, Harrisburg Dairies, and Agway, Inc.

Reading Fair to feature tractor pull

READING – The Reading Fair, which runs Sept. 11-16, will feature tractor pulling contests for the first time this year.

The Pennsylvania Tractor Pullers Association has announced that on Thursday, Sept. 14 at 7:30 p.m., it will hold a Class AA purse sanction pull at the Reading Fairgrounds. Tractor pulling is one of America's fastest growing sports and over the past year has spread worldwide.

The tractor pull at the Reading Fair scheduled for Thursday night will draw the top tractors from the eastern United States, pulling in six different classes. Classes pulling will be the 5000 pound modified and the 7000 pound modified classes, which are tractors powered with almost any type of automotive engine, some with two or three engines, and also tractors with Allison aircraft engines. Other classes pulling will be the 5000, 7000, and 9000 super stock and the 9500 pound open class and the 12,000 open class which will feature tractors with modified engines and also farm tractors that have been built specifically for tractor pulling by increasing their normal 100 to 150 horsepower to 900 to 1000 horsepower.

Less Houck, executive secretary of the Pennsylvania Tractor Pullers Association, headquartered in New Holland, said the pull will draw the top points contenders on the PTPA circuit. Houck explained that the tractors competing at all PTPA sanction pulls across Pennsylvania accumulate points and that this pull being an AA purse pull will draw the top points contenders.

Fair manager, Joy Chalmers noted that there have been many inquiries regarding the tractor pull, and feels that it will be extremely strong draw for the Reading Fair

Ticket prices for the tractor pull are: general admission - $3 50; reserved seats - $4.00, and children from age 6-11 - $1.00.

MOPRO

LIQUID
SILAGE FORTIFIER

A revolutionary new concept in improving silages. MOPRO Liquid Silage Fortifier is formulated to balance the major mineral and protein deficiencies of silages. MOPRO is added at the time of ensiling and is applied by metering equipment with very little handling cost. MOPRO will not corrode mild steel tanks or brass fittings and has no free ammonia odor to irritate the eyes or skin. MOPRO is a homogeneous solution of ammonia salts, urea, cane molasses, and minerals (except salt and calcium) in an efficient liquid carrier. It provides nitrogen for improved fermentation in the rumen and contains a mineral balance of phospherous, magnesium, and trace elements. MOPRO 100 gives a resulting silage of approximately 14.3% protein.

Md. receives marketing grant

WASHINGTON, D.C. – Maryland received two U.S. Department of Agriculture grants last month totalling $33,700, Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland said. The grants were made under USDA's Federal-State Marketing Improvement Program.

The largest grant of $24,370 will be used to generate increased export demand for purebred beef cattle and semen through export seminars and other activities, according to Barbara Lindemann Schlei, administrator of USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service (AMS).

The remaining $9,000 will be used to improve the state farmer-to-consumer direct marketing operations, Schlei said. The state will match both grants with equal amounts of state monies.

Export of livestock from Maryland in the past has been limited mostly to dairy cows and purebred Black Angus bulls. State officials told USDA that a major drawback to export sales by individual producers has been locating buyers and knowing how to prepare cattle for shipment.

"The decline of slaughtering in the East and the Westward push of commercial meat production is forcing Maryland farmers to find alternative livestock markets," Schlei said. "This program is intended to give producers the facts for exporting their livestock."

To encourage the establishment of roadside, farmers and tailgate markets, as well as other direct market operations, Maryland officials will develop a slide presentation and other informational materials.

Maryland officials estimate that the farmer's share of the food dollar is only 40 per cent, Schlei said. Produce costs between the farm and the consumer increase by more than 150 per cent for some items because of marketing charges.

"Eliminating some of these charges by selling direct would benefit both the producer and the consumer financially and, at the same time, assure the consumer of higher quality and more nutritious products," she said.

In the 1600's umbrellas were made of feathers.

24 HOUR SERVICE

Harvesting continuing throughout Pa.

HARRISBURG – Farmers in Pennsylvania had six days suitable for fieldwork in the state during the week ending August 28, according to the Pennsylvania Crop Reporting Service. Relief from the high humidity was welcomed with the only discordant note being heavy dew and fog preventing drying off until late morning in many areas.

Soil moisture levels continued to decline in the week and are now rated mostly adequate to somewhat short.

Corn is now 55 per cent in dough and 14 per cent dented statewide. This is four days behind the 21 per cent dented a year ago. The north reports only five per cent dented, central counties are at 16 per cent, while the south reports 21 per cent. A very small amount of ensilage has been cut. An above normal amount of ear worm and grasshopper damage is reported.

Potatoes are at 21 per cent dug, which puts them three days behind the one-fourth dug a year ago. Northern counties are one-fifth done, central counties are at 18 per cent and the south stands at 26 per cent. Frequent reports of blight were received.

Combining of oats made rapid progress last week and now stands at 92 per cent. This is a week behind the 95 per cent a year ago. Virtually all are harvested in central and southern counties with the north at 85 per cent.

Tobacco is now 17 per cent harvested. This puts it a week behind the 40 per cent of last year.

At 19 per cent done, Fall plowing lags last year's 38 per cent by six days. Northern and central areas are 19 per cent done with the south nearly steady at 17 per cent. Southern operators report baked soil making plowing difficult and indicate a shower would be welcomed. A slight bit of barley has been sown in the south.

Hay quality made last week was rated good by 84 per cent of reporters and fair by the rest. This was the best quality reported since the first week of June. Alfalfa second cutting is 87 per cent made with the third cutting at 36 per cent. Last year the third cutting stood at 48 per cent. Clo-tim second cutting is 56 per cent complete. Feed from pastures is average.

Schweiker seeks mushroom import relief

WASHINGTON – A top U.S. trade official, admitting that mushroom imports are disrupting the American Market, promised U.S. Senator Richard S. Schweiker (R-Pa.) on Monday that the Administration will seek relief for the import problem.

"For the first time, an Administration official has plainly admitted that we've got a mushroom imports problem on our hands. To me, that's a major breakthrough," stated Schweiker.

Schweiker's comments came at the conclusion of a meeting today in his Washington office with Alan Wolff, Deputy Special Trade Representative for Trade Negotiations, and several representatives of the mushroom industry.

Schweiker pointed out that Special Trade Representative Robert Strauss had previously agreed that the Administration would consider an import hike greater than 19 per cent to be excessive. Schweiker pointed out that government figures now show that Taiwan mushroom imports increased 36 per cent during the past year.

"Imports of canned mushrooms captured 54 per cent of the domestic market, during the last quarter," noted Schweiker, "while total imports for the past year jumped to 48 per cent of the total market."

"American mushroom producers can't survive that kind of crunch," stated Schweiker.

Wolff told Schweiker that Taiwanese trade negotiations will be in Washington during the third week in September for trade discussions and that the mushroom import problem will be addressed at that time

"I'm encouraged by Mr. Wolff's reaction to the evidence I presented to him today," said Schweiker. "He acknowledged that currrent trends are putting a real squeeze on American producers, and I feel that admitting this problem exists is the first step to solving it."

Schweiker said that, previously, President Carter has refused to impose import restrictions recommended to him by the International Trade Commission.

ASCS program administrators to review agriculture policy

WASHINGTON, D.C — State committees and state directors of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service (ASCS) will review federal farm programs and the role of American agriculture in the U.S and the world at a conference here Sept. 12-14. About 170 farmers who serve on ASCS state committees plus state directors are expected to attend.

"We want our employees and the full-time farmers who serve on our committees to know more about the legislative, administrative and policy-making processes which affect federal farm programs and agriculture in general," ASCS Administrator Ray Fitzgerald explains. "Through this conference, our program administrators will be able to discuss policies and goals with top officials in the Department of Agriculture, the State Department, the Office of Management and Budget and the Office of the Special Trade Representative, as well as the White House. In this way, they will learn firsthand the background for policies affecting agriculture."

The last national meeting for state committees and directors was held in 1974. State committees composed of farmers appointed by the Secretary of Agriculture work with full-time state directors to administer federal farm programs in their states. Locally elected committees of farmers and full-time staffs run the programs in about 2,700 counties.

Owen Newlin elected

WASHINGTON, D C. – Owen J. Newlin, vice president of Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc., Des Moines, Iowa, was elected chairman of the board of the U.S. Feed Grains Council for 1978-79.

Newlin, a board director since 1970, succeeds Lyle P Campbell, a Hedging Specialist with Conti Commodity Services, Inc, Chicago, Illinois.

In his acceptance speech, Newlin challenged the Council to stay on its target of increasing feed grains exports 1 billion bushels by 1982, which would represent a 50% jump from 2 billion to 3 billion bushels in just four years.

"We can reach this goal by expanding our market development efforts in emerging market areas of Southeast Asia; Eastern Europe and USSR; the Mideast and Africa; and Central and South America," he continued "But to accomplish this we must continue to expand farmer/producer 'self-help' support through corn and sorghum check-off programs as well as broaden our agribusiness membership"

Harmony and efficiency

sees some agribusinesses as getting a sizeable foothold in many areas of farming and notes that an independent poultryman is a rarity nowadays. According to Beam, a similar trend could be in the making for pork producers. His answer to the challenge is greater efficiency.

Pointing out that swine production facilities are being built faster than ever before, Beam speculates that the current boom in the hog business is being overplayed. He believes there could be too much interest to get into the business now, there's too much building going on, and the result is that some fellows are going to be squeezed out of the picture due to the increased competition.

"We have to become more efficient to stay in business. We'll have to know what it's costing us to produce a pound of pork. We'll have to look for better feeder pigs and better growth in hogs," Beam predicted.

Recognizing the challenges ahead, Beam is going ahead with plans to modernize his farming operation. He, and his father, William, before him, have always tried to keep up with the latest profitable trends. Sixteen years ago, William and Titus Beam put up the first totally confined hog house after having seen similar operations while on a trip through Indiana.

"That house was obsolete two years after it was built," the business-minded Beam remembered. "When we built it, everybody was with dry feed; two years later the push was on for liquid feeding," he explained. Nonetheless, Beam has no complaints about the old house which has put out more than 20,000 hogs since 1962.

"Right now everybody is energy conscious," Beam continued. He feels that by switching feeding and housing systems, he can count on saving a lot of energy "I have been drying corn for 12 years. When I started it cost me two to three cents per bushel. Last year it was up to 12 and 13 cents per bushel," he explained. He figures on paying for his new feeding system in seven to eight years, even if natural gas prices remain steady.

Less energy and less maintenance have become the key phrases to future profits for Beam. He quickly adds, however, that the Nebraska Unit will require more careful and exacting management.

The advantages of the new system over the old include that there won't be any fans to operate and maintain, drafts will be minimized, the over-all environment will be healthier, and feed will be cheaper Last but not least, Beam declares: "The old house took a lot of maintenance and that was one thing I wanted to do away with."

Beam's new structure will more than double his capacity for fattening hogs. While the old barn has room for just under 500, the new unit will accomodate nearly 600. He fattens only crossbred hogs, claiming that they have more vigor, gain faster, and give him very few problems. He does most of his marketing direct on a grade yield basis. "My hogs usually yield 73½ to 74½ per cent; I don't take them off feed before I sell them," he explained.

Beam likes to see a rate of gain of about 1.6 pounds per day or better. He uses his own feed ration to accomplish that goal and runs regular tests to keep track of his programs.

What about the future?

Beam says hereafter any major changes will be up to his boys. Appreciative of what his family's efforts have accomplished, he points out that he is happy with his operation and will be glad to assist his boys once they're ready to get into the hog business on their own.

A sod waterway was installed to help cut erosion at the neglected Maryland farm. All projects combined were expected to cut erosion by about 88 per cent.

Project Clearwater

decided to take on this massive project, they had more in mind than just demonstrating the magic of men and machines. They were reacting to clean water legislation passed by Congress in 1972 and amended in 1977. Basically, the law said farmers would have to control the sediment, animal wastes, fertilizers and pesticides that were washing off their land and polluting streams.

It was the first time farmers had every been faced with federal water pollution control laws. And, at first, it had many concerned.

It's not that the farm community disagreed with the concept of the law. They were apprehensive over how it would be administered. Afterall, they asked, what do bureaucrats in Washington know about controlling pollution while running a money making farm operation?

It was then that the nation's 3000 soil and water conservation districts entered the scene.

"Soil conservation is the answer to much of this nation's nonpoint water pollution problem," says Daniel C. Poole, chairman of Project Clearwater and member of the Catoctin District.

"If you control erosion, you automatically cut down on the amount of sediment - and the chemicals attached to it - reaching streams. It's just good management!"

Indeed, according to the USDA's Soil Conservation Service, about 3 billion tons of soil washes off the nation's cropland each year. That's enough to fill a train of freight cars over 600,000 miles long.

The technology for preventing soil erosion and controlling runoff has been around for decades. Many landowners have taken advantage of districts' technical assistance by voluntarily installing one or more conservation practices.

Project Clearwater was the work of five years in a single day. Paul Edwards, district conservationist for the USDA's Soil Conservation Service, estimated that the conservation plan will reduce erosion on the Roelkey farm by about 80 per cent Before the field day renovations, it was estimated that up to 350 tons of topsoil were lost from each acre per year.

Electric co-ops get USDA loans

WASHINGTON, D.C. – Aggressive, locally developed and consumer-oriented energy conservation programs will soom become a factor in determining the eligibility of a rural electric distribution cooperative for a loan or loan guarantee from the U.S. Department of Agriculture, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Alex Mercure announced Monday.

Lehigh members

$12 million of prefeerred stock and the pledging of $5000 by each member over a five-year period. Members and others holding the stock would have redeemed it for 20 cents on the dollar, although there is no current market for the stock. The $5 million raised from the members would have been matched by the Baltimore Bank of Cooperatives and the Central Bank of Denver, who would have taken non-interest bearing capital certificates in exchange for a portion of Lehigh's long term debt of $20 million. The recapitalization program would have improved the dairy's working capital and increased its net worth from $400 thousand to $8 million.

President Robert P. Barry, joined Chairman Ruth in giving advance notice of the letter to nearly 200 farmers who attended a meeting Wednesday night in the company's auditorium to discuss the proposal. He reiterated Ruth's feeling that the program was "a unique and great opportunity and it probably would have passed. But to be a total success, it needed everybody in favor ot it, not just a simple majority ofthe voting members. At some time in the future, we will want to take another look at this. But, for now, we must concentrate on the day-to-day task of moving our members' milk into the marketplace and assuring them of the steady growth of the business."

As the result of the decision to drop the refinancing program, the dairy cancelled the general membership meeting that had been scheduled for September 7.

Farmers have been discussing the proposal around the state during meetings conducted by Barry and Lehigh board chairman Alpheus Ruth.

Lehigh's decision to put a recapitalization program into effect comes just four months after the dairy gave members a generally favorable report on general conditions, including financial matters. The sudden turn of events has jolted not only members, but dairy market observers throughbout the region.

A sampling of opinion among Lehigh members indicates that no one likes the idea of having to invest more money into the ailing cooperative, but that it may well be a very vital step.

There is considerable opposition to the plan as well.

William Howerter of Kempton believes the recapitalization program is a "pretty good idea to get the dairy on sound footing." What disturbs him more than anything is the fact that he and other members are having to pay for a strike which allegedly cost the cooperative $650,000. Some members refuse to believe the $650,000 loss is due solely to a strike which lasted only 18 days.

"If that's it (the loss) then they should have settled sooner. I figure that other losses may be being blamed on the strike," says Russell Dietrich of New Tripoli. Remembering that the cooperative had been saying things were going real well, Dietrich admits that he is "very upset" about the assessment that has been levied to allegedly pay for the cost of the strike. Lehigh is deducting 18 cents per hundredweight from members' milk shipped since February through July of this year. Dietrich says he's particularly upset because the cooperative gave no warning of this action and was painting rosy pictures at the annual meeting in April.

"Something has to be done, but it's hard – particularly for a young fellow," Dietrich added.

"I definitely believe that there is a need for Lehigh. I hope all the members vote for the recapitalization plan," said Howerter, who believes the present preferred stock was "too much to handle for Lehigh." He adds that under the new program, Lehigh should be able to get back on its feet again.

Dietrich would like to see the cooperative back on its feet, but he is hesitant about giving his support. "Asking for more now is more than the average farmer is willing to do, especially when independent dairies are paying higher prices," the Berks Countian explained.

Dietrich said he would support the plan if he were given a guarantee that it would succeed. "But we have been told this before, and each time they failed miserably," the dairyman commented. "I'm fearful that no matter how much they get, it won't help.

One solution to the problem which Dietrich has in mind is that managers of the cooperative not be paid a flat salary. Instead, he prefers to have them paid on performance.

The plot of Longfellow's poem Evangeline, was told to him by writer Nathaniel Hawthorne.

AEB outlines programs for 1978

PARK RIDGE, Ill. – Members of the American Egg Board (AEB) met in Anaheim, Calif., this Summer for a fast-paced week of activity including the American Egg House grand opening, and review and approval of the 1979 AEB budget.

After careful consideration of the proposed programs, AEB approved a $6 3 million budget for 1979.

In specific board actions, approval was given for a 1979 media program which includes a national network television campaign featuring the Incredible Edible Egg. The program also includes magazine advertisements which will be jointly financed by AEB and interested advertisers who want to "tie-in" with egg advertising.

The Board approved increased funding for AEB's cholesterol research and other untrition research. The $615,000 budget will be used to conduct research on the role of eggs in human nutrition, with special emphasis on cholesterol.

Research into product and market development was encouraged by the Board with the adoption of a $200,000 budget for 1979. This figure includes allocations for three graduate fellowships to encourage development and marketing of new egg products and new products containing eggs

Strong approval was given by the Board for AEB Consumer Education program. Specifically, the State and Regional Cooperative Funding programs were given funding increases for 1979. The overall consumer education program reaches millions of consumers with information directed through a variety of communications channels.

To insure proper communication with producers, the Board approved funds for a Producer Relations program. The program will utilize many different methods of keeping producers informed of AEB activities

Following the close of the meeting, the Board and special guests attended the grand opening of the American Egg House restaurant in Disneyland The Egg House grand opening was highlighted by a Main Street Parade featuring Disney characters and an official "cracking" ceremony presided over by Donald J Long, chairman of the American Egg Board.

The American Egg House is an exciting new concept i promotion between Disney and AEB, which will be seen by millions of visitors to Disneyland each year.

As part of the grand opening ceremonies, Howard Helmer, AEB Omelet King, shattered the existing World Omelet Cooking Record by cooking 217 omelets in 30 minutes, using six pans Helmer's record will be published in the next edition of the Guinness Book of World Records.

They came by car, camper, and even baby buggy, across hayfields and gravel roads. Making their way across the Ag Progress grounds, above, were, left to right, Bonnie Rossman, Lois Betz, Barbara Bair, Tara Rossman and Fred Betz with Ryan Bair, all of Centre County.

Bergland considers ag exports to Red China

PENDLETON, Ore. -- Development of permanent trade relations with Red China would be good news for western farmers, Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland said here last month.

"China may be the single biggest undeveloped wheat export market in the world," Bergland declared, "and western U.S. wheat producers stand to gain the most if we are able to develop that potential."

"We have already made good progress with the PRC," he pointed out. "In 1975 and 1976 our grain exports to China were zero. In 1977 we shipped a modest 238,000 metric tons of wheat to the PRC and this year they have purchased more than two million metric tons of U.S. wheat and other grain."

In addition, he said, China has started to buy substantial amounts of U.S. cotton for the first time in 25 years. In the year ending July 31, Red China purchased a half million bales of U.S. cotton. China has been importing about 2 million bales a year and offers a potentially big market for the U.S. for this commodity, Bergland said.

"Traditionally," he said, "the U.S. has played the role of residual supplier to China; in some years we have not made a single sale to the PRC.

"There are a number of reasons for increased U.S. farm exports other than just improved relations with China," Bergland said.

"All grain importing nations can be assured that the U.S. will not embargo the export of our farm products," Bergland emphasized. "Second, with improved port inspections, foreign customers have regained confidence in the quality of our grain. Third, because of the great success of our reserve programs, we are now a more dependable supplier."

Bergland also commended the nation's wheat farmers for their high rate of participation in the set-aside and reserve programs.

Preventive program given for control of thrush

NORRISTOWN – A good preventative medicine program for horses includes the maintenance of good, healthy feet, say experts. One specific problem associated with the equine foot is thrush. It is characterized by a foul odor with a fetid dark, sometimes black, exudate (pus) that usually is associated with poor growth and disintegration of the horn of the frog.

Poor sanitation, a wasting away of the frog, and a lack of frog pressure as a result of poor trimming or shoeing, can predispose the foot to thrush. The microorganism which causes thrush is present in the digestive tract of horses as well as other animals and also exists in the soil and dirty bedding.

To treat thrush, one should keep the surface of stalls as dry as possible, and clean the horse's feet thoroughly every day to assure exposure of all affected areas of the foot. A persons should treat the infected area with a recommended thrush medication.

Recommended medications for early problems include dry agents such as 10 per cent formalin, equal parts phenol and iodine, tincture of iodine or hydrogen peroxide, and copper sulfate applied to the infected area.

The best means of preventing thrush is by keeping stables and turn-out sheds clean and dry and by providing good care of the feet. This includes daily cleaning and routine trimming every six to eight weeks.

Fires more of a threat now

NEW YORK – America's newest terror is the "home inferno," a new kind of catastrophic fire which demands escape within seconds.

Hotter, faster new fires now quickly reach "flash point" reports Popular Mechanics in its current (September) issue and often become explosions that drive off rescuing firemen. The article attributes hotter fires to wide use of new and highly flammable materials in furnishings and construction.

In the article the National Fire Protection Association is quoted as saying that in the new kinds of fires "you're lucky if you have 20 seconds to escape. Yet it takes some sleepers 15 minutes to wake up.

A second new peril, virtually unknown, the article warns, is the "fire-gas attack." Gases from smoldering new materials kill many before they wake up. Others, it says, can be so deranged by a few breaths that they forget where doors and windows are.

The article's author, E.D. Fales, Jr., a fire prevention expert warns that every home or apartment now needs smoke detectors. He also urges "remote horns" which also sound in neighbor's houses -- "priceless protection if you leave a sleep baby-sitter at home."

The Popular Mechanics piece calls for instant-escape apparatus and sprinkler systems for homes and apartments, and escape masks for family members. Also recommended are escape balconies, drop-down ladders and even escape chutes like those used in airliners.

Potato harvest looks good

both the quality and the size of his crop.

Speaking of his coming crops, he thought that they, too, looked "pretty good", with no blight problems to report. He thought that he would probably start harvesting his later potatoes today or Monday.

The major problem that faced potato growers this season seemed to be the Colorado potato beetle, which plaqued farmers in unusually heavy numbers this Summer. The result was that heavier amounts of insecticide than usual were used and the cost of producing those fine potatoes increased.

And yet so far this season, the growers complained, the price of the potato has been poor.

One farmer thought that prices might be down, partly due to the weather. He believed that the wet and rainy days have held up harvesting all over the East Coast, and as a result there has been a backlog of potatoes. But on the positive side, he noted that New York's potato crop seems to be 'short' and the Virginia crop is now basically used up, so hopefully prices will now start to rise. At least that was the way he said that he hoped prices would go.

In Lancaster County, Noah Kreider, Jr., who has 245 acres of potatoes said his crop looks very good, in size, quality, and yield, where he expects to get about 500 bushels per acre, a respectable potato average

He related that the wet month of August has held up his harvesting slightly and he thinks he is about two weeks behind schedule compared to other years and his harvesting. He too spoke of his problems with the Colorada potato beetle but stated that he now has the problem under control.

John S. Thompson, Shrewsbury, York County, noted that he exected a fair to good crop from his potatoes. As with all the other potato farmers, his biggest problem was with the Colorado potato beetle, but that threat to his crop is under control.

He said that he thought he got about 400 bushels per acre on his early potatoes and expects to harvest 500 to 600 bushels on his later varieties. Right now, the weather is hindering his digging, but he thought that he is still basically on schedule. He expects that he'll be harvesting his potatoes, as will other farmers, until about the middle of October.

From Lehigh County, came reports calling the potato harvest "pretty good", with farmers reporting that just about all of the early potatoes have been harvested. Good quality was the comment that seemed to consistently be heard from the different fields of the potato farmers.

Roger Hausaman, Schnecksville, told that his potato quality this year is real good, but that yields are down slightly, due to some earlier dry weather, he reasoned. He said that the weather was good for harvesting, except that it had been "slightly hot.

He reported that there had been one case of 'possible' blight in the county but that the hot dry weather took care of that threat. The Colorado potato beetles were a problem but he hoped that the worries with them were over now.

He called the potato crop not exceptionally large this year, but again noted that the potatoes would be of very good quality.

Berks 4-H'ers try out own facilities at Fair

By LAUREL SCHAEFFER
Staff Correspondent

LEESPORT -- Participating in the Berks County 4-H Fair is enough to excite most 4-H'ers, but making this year even more special to the enthusiastic youngsters was the idea of holding their annual event at their own facilities, here at the Berks County Agricultural and 4-H Centers. Most contests and games were held outside on the picturesque 4-H grounds while exhibits and displays were assembled indoors.

The Center proved to be a very convenient substitute for the proposed 4-H Center which is planned to be constructed in the future. Changes are being made already, insuring the 4-H'ers that progress is being made on their behalf and their dream for their own complete facilities is slowly but surely coming true. An announcers booth had been built as of Aug. 24, when the 4-H Fair was held. Various other smaller changes were also evident.

Members representing 4-H clubs from all corners of Berks County competed in a wide variety of activities during the day-long affair ranging from a pie eating contest, to a bike rodeo. Results from these events follow.

Gypsy moths being controlled

HARRISBURG -- Secretary of Environmental Resources Maurice K. Goddard said last month that gypsy moth populations have collapsed over a wide area of eastern Pennsylvania as a result of increased parasite activity.

Goddard also reported that increased State appropriations for the Department's gypsy moth spraying program apparently will be sufficient for 1979 so there will be no need for contributions by county governments for the cooperative program to treat infested forested residential areas.

Goddard said Department officials were pleasantly surprised when aerial surveys revealed that approximately 452,000 acres were defoliated this summer in 23 counties, compared with 1.3 million acres in 28 counties in 1977 and an anticipated 2 million acres in 1978.

In Dauphin County, for example, 92,000 acres were defoliated in 1977 but only 1,058 this year.

"This excellent turn of events comes from great increases in two of our 'friendly flies' - Parasetigena silvestris and Blepharipa pratensis - which attack the gypsy moth caterpillar," Goddard said.

"These flies, which were imported from Europe specifically to attack the gypsy moth, do not attack other insects, animals or humans so they cannot become pests themselves," Goddard said. "They are rather large (about two-thirds the size of a horsefly) and like to light on people but they do not bite and should be seen as our helpers."

Both the flies and the gypsy moths are in an inactive stage now and will not reappear until next spring.

Goddard said this year's figures represent "the first significant success in the effort to bring the gypsy moth into a natural balance with our forested environment."

The Department has been engaged in an intensive biological control effort since 1974 when modern facilities to rear imported parasites were constructed at Harrisburg International Airport.

The Secretary said the battle against the gypsy moth is far from over, however, but "Now we have an indication that the destructive gypsy moth can eventually be brought within manageable levels so that we will not be faced with an uncontrollable situation year after year."

"There were numerous infestations that collapsed this year after receiving only one year of defoliation," Goddard said. "Previously, we could expect two and sometimes three years of defoliation before populations collapsed from stress. In addition, we had many areas containing rising gypsy moth populations where there should have been severe defoliation this year, including Schuylkill, Carbon, Monroe, and Lycoming Counties. Parasites actually prevented defoliation in these areas for the first time."

The establishment of imported parasites by the Forest Pest Management Division has met with mixed success. Eight different species of parasitic flies and wasps are established, all environmentally safe, but more than 20 other species have had to be dropped from the program.

Some counties in Central Pennsylvania, along the "western defoliation front," particularly Perry, Juniata, Mifflin, and Snyder, where the parasites have not caught up with the spreading moth, were severely defoliated this year. The Department's task now is to help nature in these areas be redistributing parasites from other areas where they are overly abundant.

Goddard said that with the funding for spraying approved by the General Assembly, "We do not anticipate that participating counties will need to assist in funding the 1979 spraying operation."

He said the Department will not know spraying needs until after county proposals are received in October but indicated the funding should be sufficient for all legitimate requests covered by spraying guidelines.

WHAT'S NEW

FORD TRACTOR

A new four-wheel-drive version of the popular 23-horsepower Ford Model 1600 agricultural tractor has been introduced by Ford's North American Tractor and Implement Operations. The new model permits an operator to shift manually to four-wheel-drive whenever additional traction is required. In loose or wet soil, the powered front wheels pull the tractor through turns, saving brake wear and reducing tire rutting.

All rear-mounted implements currently available with the Ford 1600 two-wheel-drive tractor are compatible with the four-wheel-drive version Ford's Model 702 dozer, 770 loader, and 915 mower have been redesigned to fit both two-wheel and four-wheel-drive 1600 models

Pruning time important to plants

MEDIA – Pruning should start as soon as one sets his new plants in the ground, states Special Circular 235, Pruning Ornamental Plants, published by The Pennsylvania State University, College of Agriculture, Cooperative Extension Service. At this point all that is involved is the removal of several of the longer stems or the thinning of the top growth to shape the plant.

The initial pruning of the top is necessary to balance the volume of roots with the volume of leaves on the plants, especially if plants are bare-root or balled and burlapped as they come from the nursery Homeowners frequently rely on pruning to solve a variety of design problems on their property.

Without good pruning practices, many plants would grow to a cumbersome size or decline long before they reach their potential as a landscape specimen Most home gardeners and homeowners can care for their plants once they understand what constitutes proper pruning and when their plants should be pruned.

Single copies of Special Circular 235, Pruning Ornamental Plants, may be requested from the Delaware County Cooperative Extension Service Office, Toal Bldg Media, Pa. 19063

Steady soybean prices seen

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The United States Department of Agriculture announced last week that soybean prices will most likely stay strong despite indications that this nation will experience a heavy harvest. The 1978 soybean crop was estimated last month at a record of almost 1.77 billion bushels, up three per cent from last year.

USDA bases its bright price future on reports which indicate that there will be record demands for soybeans during the new marketing year, which began yesterday, Sept. 1. Prospects look good for some increase in U.S. soybean crushings and exports from the record rates now estimated for 1977-78, the reports say.

Total soybean use, including domestic use and export demands, is expected to total around 1.8 billion bushels in the coming year, or more than what this year's harvest is expected to produce. Hence, soybean reserves can't be built up this year.

Soybean prices are still hovering above $6.00 per bushel, which is considerably above the $5.28 price paid to farmers last Fall. Conceding that prices may drop to slightly below $6.00 in October, USDA adds, however, that they should not go down as low as they were a year ago. Futures prices are holding up, thus giving further credibility to the USDA prediction.

Another important reason for the optimistic price outlook is that Brazil, this country's chief competitor for soybean exports, has had a poor crop year. Foreign demand for U.S. soybeans could therefore be at record levels, the report concluded.

Plowing winners named

UNIVERSITY PARK — Jay Stoner of Mechanicsburg and and Roger Platt of Berlin are this year's champions in the State Plowing Contest, held last week at Ag Progress Days.

Stoner captured the small plow, level land plowing title, while Platt turned the best furrows in the large plow, level land division.

Second place in the small plow division went to Paul Snyder of New Enterprise, and third to Dennis Leffler of Gratz. Second place in the large plow contest was awarded to Marlin Detterline of New Enterprise. Third place winners, a tie, were Curtis Glazier of McConnellsburg and Robert Miller of Millersburg.

The plowing matches featured all county contest winners.

Farm Bureau urging early word on feed program announcement

PARK RIDGE, Ill — The board of directors of American Farm Bureau Federation Tuesday called on Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland to make a September announcement on the provisions of the 1979 program for feed grains

The board said the goal of the 1979 program should be a crop of 5 5 billion bushels of corn, a reduction from the estimated record 6 5 billion bushels in 1978. This action, said the AFBF board, should have the immediate effect of improving the current depressed corn prices.

A 5.5 billion bushel corn crop and estimated 1979 carryover of 1.3 billion bushels will be more than ample to meet domestic consumption and export requirements, the board said.

In asking the Secretary to make the announcement in September, the board said that farmers cannot wait for the mandated November 15 deadline under the 1977 Food and Agriculture Act to know what the 1979 program will provide. Some farmers begin land preparation for next year's crop immediately after harvest.

Pa. exports featured in September

HARRISBURG – Two events to be held in September will focus attention on the export of Pennsylvania's agricultural products, according to State Agriculture Secretary Kent Shelhamer.

The events, sponsored by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture and the Pennsylvania Agricultural Foreign Trade Council will include a workshop conference at the Hotel Hershey September 6 and 7, and an exhibition of Pennsylvania's agricultural businesses and products at the Pennsylvania All-American Dairy Show September 27 and 28 at the State Farm Show Building in Harrisburg.

Shelhamer stressed the importance of agricultural exports to our economic well-being. "In 1977, the output of one of every three acres harvested in the nation was sent abroad. Our agricultural exports totaled $24 billion last year, an all time record, and provided us with a net agricultural product trade balance of nearly $11 billion."

Several developments have contributed to the increase in United States agricultural exports: expanding foreign population and income, reduced production abroad, available supplies, and the upgrading of diets by foreign consumers. As foreign countries grow more affluent, rising markets for agricultural exports are created.

The Pennsylvania Agricultural Foreign Trade Council workship will deal with the export problems faced by Pennsylvania's agricultural sector, and will feature speakers from the Foreign Agricultural Service, International Banks, Freight Forwarders, Containerization Companies and Pennsylvania Agri-businesses which now engage in export marketing.

Shelhamer said that subjects which will be discussed at the conference include selecting correct select markets, how to well in foreign markets successfully, how to acquire assistance from federal and state agencies, how to guarantee payment, shipping and handling, labeling and packaging and the value of foreign trade shows.

The export exhibition scheduled in conjunction with the Pennsylvania All-American Dairy Show will feature Pennsylvania products. Representatives of the agri-businesses exhibiting will be in attendance at their booths to handle all inquiries.

Advance attendance acceptances for the Pennsylvania All-American Dairy Show have more than doubled over last year. Buyers from around the world are expected to be on hand to observe one of the largest and finest international agricultural shows in the United States.

Shelhamer said that every Agricultural Attache stationed in the foreign embassies in Washington, D.C. has received a personal invitation to attend the show. Notice has also been sent to all American Agricultural Attaches stationed throughout the world in order that they may advise interested persons and organizations of the event.

Beef council releasing new promotional, educational materials

DES MOINES, Iowa – New materials deisgned to build demand for beef in three growing markets have been introduced by the Beef Industry Council of the Meat Board.

To meet the need for sound nutrition information about beef in the nation's schools, the BIC has produced "Beef: Your Stake in Basic Nutrition," a color filmstrip and teaching kit. Using a cartoon format to enliven the subject, the filmstrip presents good nutrition concepts in a way junior high and high school students can understand and enjoy.

The teaching kit also contains a wall chart, teacher's guide, nutrition charts and other classroom aids. "Beef: Your Stake in Basic Nutrition" was produced through a special allocation from the Minnesota Beef Council.

In the consumer information area, the BIC is reaching the burgeoning microwave market with a new 16-page color booklet called Microwave Cooking with Beef. The booklet contains a dozen delicious beef recipes that can be easily prepared by microwave, along with tips and information about this new method of cookery. It was developed through a special grant from the Illinois Beef Industry Council.

With one out of four pounds of beef being consumed away from home, the foodservice market offers a tremendous opportunity to the beef industry. The BIC has developed a foodservice merchandising kit that will help increase beef's share of this important market. It features four posters for use in restaurants, along with recipe cards and table cubes. The kit is designed to attract the customer with appetite-appealing posters and table cubes and help the operator with easy-to-prepare, economical beef recipes. It was developed through a special grant from the Illinois Beef Industry Council.

"These materials are important for two reasons," said Jay H. Wardell, BIC Promotion Manager. "First, they increase our promotion power in three key areas that are growing every day. Second, they represent excellent coordination of efforts between the BIC and state beef promotion organizations. Without help from the Minnesota and Illinois Beef Councils, these programs would not be available today."

Homestead Notes

It all started with an empty barn...

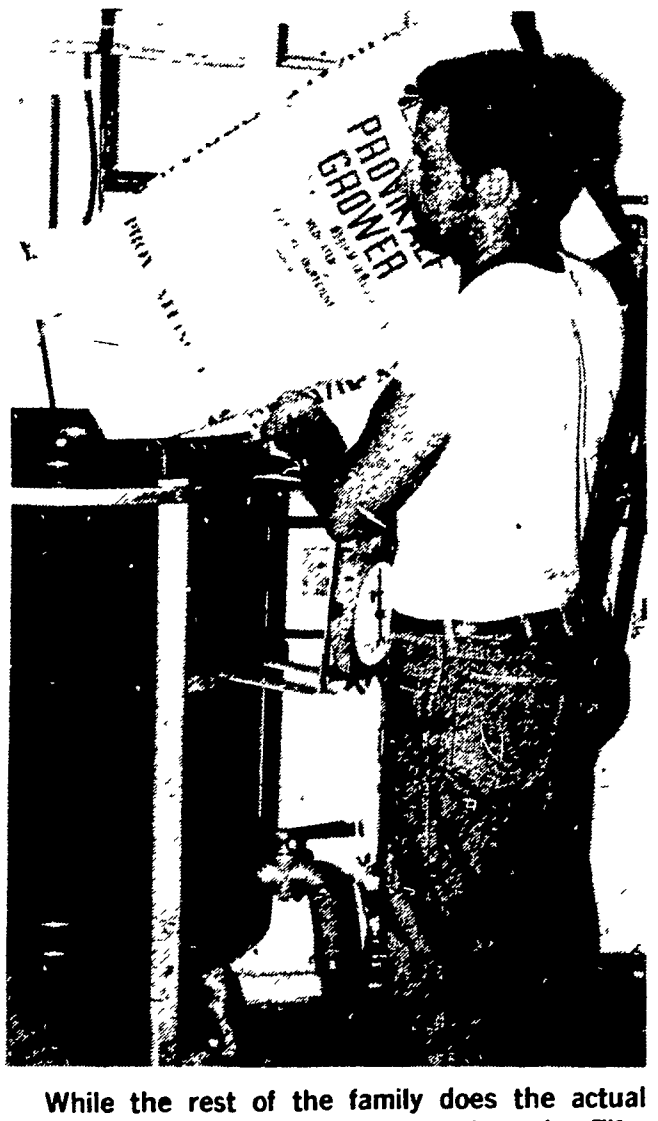
By SUSAN KAUFFMAN
Staff Writer

What do you do with an empty dairy barn? Some people renovate it for steers or horses or recreation equipment or even offices of a home. An empty barn haunted Janet Smith until she struck upon a use for it which mushroomed into a substantial agri-business that suits the Barry Smith family's situation quite well. Janet tells of the beginning of the veal calf raising set-up at Bar-Jan Farm, RD #1, New Providence, Lancaster County, in her own words.

"In March 1970 we sold our small, registered Holstein dairy herd. Barry went off to work as an apprentice electrician. We had a large barn that I couldn't stand seeing empty. In a month's time I purchased four Holstein calves from my father-in-law, and started hand-mixing their milk solution."

"One day late in May, I walked into a small Agway store in Willow Street and the manager asked me what I was doing with myself since my husband went off to work. When I told him I was fattening calves on a brand of milk replacer he didn't sell, he proceeded to tell me the latest way of vealing a calf. He had a building in the back of the store that housed 25 calves. After spending an hour that day with the manager, I knew that that was what I wanted to do with our vacant barn. It didn't take much time to convince Barry that the veal program sounded good."

"On July 6, 1970 our first 32 calves were placed in individual pens set into our cow stalls. The next batch was 64 calves. The number mushroomed to 104. Then in 1972 we built a barn which housed another 104 calves," Janet explained.



While the rest of the family does the actual feeding, Barry Smith mixed the formula. Fifty gallons are done at a time, with 180 degrees F. water used to dissolve the formula. Then the mixture is cooled to 100 degrees and pumped through a pipeline to the individual housing units of 38 to 40 calves.

The Barry Smith family is ready to work in their veal calf barn. Included in the operation are daughter Marjean, 10; Mr. and Mrs. Barry Smith, and son Doug, 14; who each work as part of the team to ensure that the operation flows smoothly.

That one hour talk with a store manager set Barry and Janet Smith and their two children, Doug and Marjeann, on their way to a two-barn, 208-head veal calf operation. Five years later, in 1977, the Smith's renovated the former dairy barn. In November, the barn was torn out inside and rebuilt and engineered in the early months of this year so that specific ventilation requirements could be met. The old dairy barn, newly remodelled, now houses 194 calves bringing the total of veal animals housed at one time to 298. In a year's time, some 900 calves are fattened in the two barns.

The day Lancaster Farming visited the Smith's farm, 114 calves arrived for their fourteen-week stay in the strictly controlled environment with a rigid feeding program. The calves are generally five to seven days old when they arrive and weigh an average of 105 pounds. Three different sized lots arrive on a definite schedule. The next group to come will number 80 and the one after that will total 104 calves to replace the already fattening groups of calves in the barns.

On the day the calves arrive, they are placed into individual, wooden-slat pens raised above the cement floor surface. The pens are 22 inches wide, three feet high and four and one-half feet long. In the newly renovated barn, the pens are built in five separate rooms or units. Each unit contains either 38 or 40 pens, two rows to each unit. The unit is totally enclosed as a room with solid walls and doors. Each one has its own separate ventilation system with its own fresh air supply and exhaust fans.

Proper ventilation, separate units, specific feeding buckets which stay in the unit, and careful attention to cleanliness help to lessen the possibility of disease and its spreading in such a set-up. Barry Smith explained that if a problem might come up it would be more easily contained to one room or unit than be spread throughout the whole operation. He pointed out that the mortality rate this year for him has been a very low four per cent, emphasizing the importance of following ventilation and health requirements.

After the newly arrived calves are placed in their individual pens they are given an electrolyte solution to which glucose and vitamin A and D and a scour preventive, Furox, is added. Janet, Marjean and Doug usually administer the seven ounce doses to the calves by using glass soft drink bottles. Barry is busy at the same time giving shots of penicillin-G for prevention of disease. For two weeks the calves are given preventive medications in their milk replacer. After that they are fed a strictly rationed milk formula to obtain the finish, proper texture, and delicate coloring desirable in veal.

Veal calves are given liquid milk formulas exclusively and are fed specific amounts twice a day according to the calves' body weight. The first feeding, given the morning after the electrolyte solution is administered, amounts to four pounds of liquid.

The calves have to be trained to drink out of the top of the plastic bucket. This process can be time consuming, but Janet says they learn quickly once shown. At the end of the fourteen weeks the calves weigh approximately 325 pounds and are receiving 20 pounds of milk formula per feeding.

Barry prepares the formula in the feed and mixing room while the rest of the family does the individual feeding of the calves. In the newly rebuilt set-up, Barry has two mixers which each hold 50 gallons of liquid. While Barry is mixing one batch, the other batch is being pumped into one of the five rooms of calves through a one and one-half inch diameter plastic pipeline. The pipeline feeding system was customized for the veal calf set-up in the Smith's barn from a conventional dairy barn pipeline system. "Of course plastic pipes would not be allowed in a dairy barn," Barry remarked.

The pipeline works in reverse of a dairy piepline in that the milk is pumped from the milk mixer in the one-time milk house out into the barn. The pipeline has a hook-up in each unit to plug in a hand-held, plastic pipe, which has a meter attached to measure out the specific amount of formula to each plastic feeding bucket.

Often Doug fills the buckets while his younger sister Marjean moves the emptied buckets from rack to rack.

The other barn does not have a pipeline in it so the mixer is moved through the barn and the formula is individually weighed in buckets one at a time as the feeding continues.

The water must be 180 degrees F. to dissolve the powdered formula, then cooled down with the addition of cold water to a feeding temperature of 100 degrees. Barry said it takes him about seven minutes to mix a batch and about the same time for the other batch to be emptied out with two people at the other end of the pipeline maning the meter and buckets.

The Smith's children are at the age when they see the value of just rewards for services rendered so the family has devised a plan whereby they keep a work sheet for a month's completed tasks. The children list days and jobs they did such as feeding or hosing down the units and are paid by check at the end of the month.

"Our children are at the age where they can do this kind of work and the family can do it together. That is why we can have so many calves at one time to feed," Barry and Janet both added.

With two people feeding in the morning it takes two and one-half hours, from 5:30 to 8 a.m. With three or four feeding in the evening it takes two hours, from 4:30 to 6:30 p.m.

Daily the barns are flushed out with water which empties into a liquid manure storage. Barry says he hopes the new manure storage will have a four-month's holding capacity.

In addition to the feeding and hosing, the loading of calves for market is included in the list of tasks required in vealing calves. Barry built a 20-foot long loading chute which is portable between the two barns and also capable of loading or unloading a double-deck, tractor-trailer truck.

Janet explained that their calves are loaded for market at midnight in order to be transported to Bloomville, New York, for the 7 a.m. slaughter. The Smiths market their calves through a firm with the trademark Provimi Veal, Delft Blue Farms, Inc. She added that the majority of their last marketed calves went for the kosher market. Airlines and restaurants also buy much of the Provimi Veal.

"We eat our own product," Janet emphasized. "It is low in cholesterol, but that is not why we eat it. We eat it because it tastes good!"

The Smiths give a lot of credit for the success of their veal operation to their Provimi fieldman and trouble shooter, Ray Farrell. Scientific feeding and housing engineering, good management and daily attention to cleanliness and routine tasks all are a part of the veal raising program at the Smith's farm. And it all began with a barn that Janet could not stand seeing empty.

6 to 8 peach halves

Stir together sugar, flour and nutmeg. Chop butter, add and make crumbs the size of peas. Put ⅓ to ½ of crumb mixture on the bottom of the pie shell. Place halves of peaches upside down. Fill in middle of pie with more peaches. Place rest of crumb mixture on top and pour ¼ cup of water over pie. Bake for 10 minutes at 450°F., then bake for 30 minutes at 350°F.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

September brings with it many changes in many homes. Children start their back-to-school routines. Some homes have an empty spot as a child leaves for college. After a Summer filled with teenagers activities, there is a quietness that is almost unbearable. But I can certainly think of a lot of activities to occupy my time, when I can finally call it my own, and not be at the beck and call of everyone else.

As for September, it is usually my busiest month in regard to harvesting things from my garden. There are tomatoes by the bushel and so many cucumbers growing on the fence. They just don't know when to quit bearing this year. The pole limas are doing fine on a heavy fence and sweet corn and grapes will also need attention.

The things I just mentioned are just plain work but they poroduce some very good eating for this Winter. To add a bit of spice top the sometimes tedious job of gardening, I like to grow some different things. I've just picked my first watermelons – I wasn't quite sure when they were ready. Also waiting to be harvested are a row of Spanish peanuts with yellow blossoms, whose long slender shoots dig into the ground to form peanuts.

The sweet peas which I planted were beautiful and fragrant but their season was too short. My sweet basil plants always grow so large and I haven't learned to use their leaves in large enough quantities and therefore most of them are wasted. At least this year I found someone to share the small plants with. Even the bright golden orange tomatoes on the table are a welcome change from the usual ones. And I delight in poking my fingers around the roots of the potatoes and only removing the large ones, thereby leaving the others to grow.

Even the flowers, planted from seed, are finally blooming profusely.

On being a farm wife

—And other hazards

By JOYCE BUPP

Fifteen children in one setting?

That's the current farm record here, now held by Daisy, our pet duck. Not content with having successfully raised one batch of ducklings earlier this summer, that determined old hen put in overtime to out-populate anything on the place.

Finishing in the poultry production contest in a poor second place was another duck, hatching out a Summer repeat performance. However, she managed a minor harvest of just three balls of fuzzy yellow fluff.

Believe it or not, our ducks shun the water. They much prefer to run around the pasture and spend too much of their time up near the barn, where easy eating abounds in the form of a buffet of bugs and bits of cattle feed. Ducks also refuse to be housebroken, and persist in rather messy habits, especially irritating to those of us who like to spend most of the Summer minus our shoes.

So, in attempt to clean up their act and educate the families to the joys of pond-side living, we hand-carried both nests and loudly protesting mothers to the grassy bank.

The old ducks were ecstatic about the unexpected chance to swim and promptly departed to splash and bathe, leaving the wee infants bewildered and frantically searching for security, while refusing to set one tiny webbed foot in the water. In the distress of the moment temporarily disertion, the eighteen babies dispensed with family loyalty and huddled together as one flock, despite our efforts to keep them separate.

We departed the pond in frustration, leaving the problem to Mother Nature and maternal instincts.

As the sun was setting that evening, the ducklings paraded back into the yard. All eighteen trailed single file behind one mother who had apparently seized a chance to take charge of the entire small armada.

Soon after, a distressed Daisy waddled toward the barn sadly searching for her lost offspring. We put the matter into arbitration and ultimately split the collection of babies into more equal households.

Mothers and children carefully accepted the solution. Everyone is content.

Well, almost everyone, that is.

The pond-side condominiums have been rejected and the feathered populace has once again relocated to the calf barn, to the backyard, to the flower bed, to the garage and everywhere else they don't belong.

Daisy is back to her old tricks of begging for crumbs from the handout bread line, and harassing the cats, dogs and toes of anyone caught coming too close to her chicks.

So much for trying to teach an old duck new tricks.

School food ruling delayed

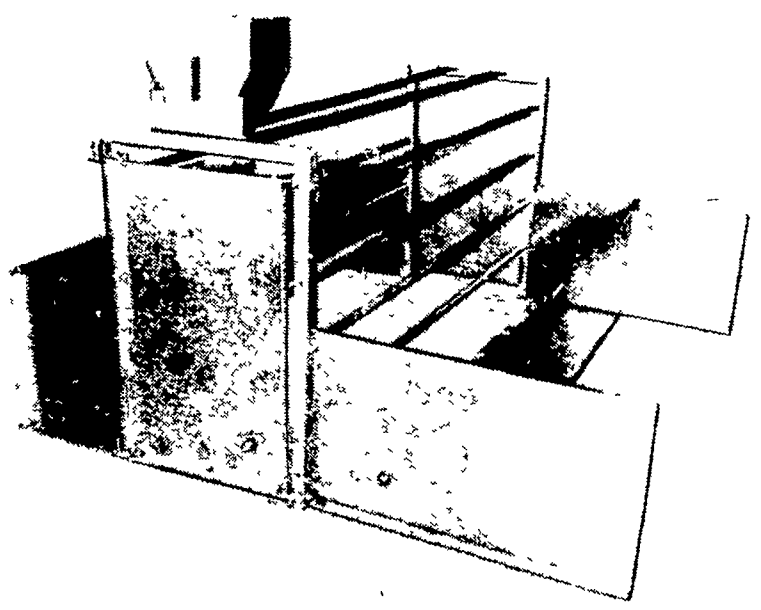
WASHINGTON, D.C. – Final regulations to ban the sale of candy, soda water, frozen desserts and chewing gum in school cafeterias until after the last lunch period will not be implemented at the beginning of the coming school year, Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Carol Tucker Foreman announced recently.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture delayed its plan to issue final regulations in time for the new school year to consider more fully the large volume of public comments, she said.

Until new rules are issued, schools will continue to operate under existing regulations which allow state and local authorities to adopt and enforce their own competitive food policies.

Northco Farrowing Crates....

THE TOUGH FARROWING CRATES



EASY TO CLEAN - There's a minimum of places for manure to hang-up and the round side-rails make clean-up easy. This means better sanitation and longer crate life. Northco Farrowing Crates in use since 1968 are still in good condition.

LABOR-SAVING - Northco Farrowing Crates can raise more pigs with less labor. Automatic feeding, watering and controlled manuring reduce the "busy" work of farrowing and increase the time available for management.

PIG-SAVING - Farrowing crates can help you wean an extra pig or more per litter according to customer experience and university research. Those extra pigs add up to extra profit for you.

Heavy-gauge, galvanized steel construction makes Northco Farrowing Crates tough . . . to stand up to hog-house abuse. But Northco Farrowing Crates are more than strong.

Optional manual metering hopper is available for use with an overhead fill system.

Spinning, weaving skills demonstrated

UNIVERSITY PARK – To Margaret Downsbrough and Ruth Hummel the opportunity to participate in Penn State's exhibit on spinning and weaving was a rare time for uninterrupted spinning and weaving. Despite the many inquiries from interested bystanders, the two women were free to spend their time doing what they enjoy most, without phone calls, dinner preparation or other duties interfering.

Ruth, a member of the State College Weavers Guild, happily explained her weavers skills to anyone who asked, and kept right on weaving. She said, "The most interesting people to me are those who are most interested. They really want to know and learn about spinning and many want to know where to get equipment. When they're interested enough to ask questions, it's a pleasure."

Ruth modestly talked of her skills, saying, "If I live to be 150, I'll never know all about it." Being at Ag Progress Days was a special delight for Ruth who explained, "I like farm people and the more I see of them the more I like them."

Margaret Downsbrough, who is a member of an informal spinning group with Mrs. Hummel, is a relative newcomer to spinning who learned the old art with relative ease. She was especially happy spinning wool at the exhibit because she said, "I get much more done here than I do at home."

"In the past few years," Margaret explained, "There's been a great deal more interest in spinning, much of it because of the desire to go back to nature." She said many people stopped and chatted and said they would really like to learn.

The educational exhibit was designed to show visitors the process from "sheep to shawl," and it was evident that watching the wool transformed first to thread and then to a table cover or shawl was fascinating for all who stopped.

HOW TO BUY WATERMELON

Selecting a watermelon for quality and flavor is difficult even for the most experienced shopper. No absolute formula exists, but the use of several factors in judging a watermelon increases your chances of success.

In cut watermelon look for firm juicy flesh with good red color. Flesh should be free from white streaks and have dark brown or black seeds. Watermelons with pale colored flesh, white streaks, and whitish seeds indicate the melon isn't ripe. Dry, mealy flesh or watery, stringy flesh are signs of overripeness or aging after harvest.

If you are buying an uncut watermelon, you must rely only on appearance. The watermelon's surface should be smooth and the rind should have a slight dullness or dusty look. The dusty appearance is a surface "bloom" that indicates maturity. The underside or "belly" of the melon should have a creamy white to yellow color. A greenish white cast indicates that the melon isn't quite ripe yet.

The ends of the melon should be filled out. Avoid melons with misshapened or pointy ends.

KNOW YOUR DEALER IF BUYING QUANTITY BEEF

Buying a side of beef for the freezer is a very different proposition than buying a week's supply of meat at the grocery store.

Your first consideration should be to find a dealer who has a well-established reputation for honesty and fairness. Although most businessmen are honest, there are always some who will take advantage of the uninformed. There are a few practices that you should be particularly on guard against.

The most prevalent underhanded tactic is the old game of "bait and switch". Unusually low prices are presented in splashy display ads. These bulk-beef operators usually advertise in the Sunday newspaper supplements and offer beef in bundles rather than sides or quarters. The lure of "bargain" beef is reinforced with all sorts of "bonus" offers, such as bacon, chicken, spareribs, franks or turkey at giveaway prices. Perhaps even automobile mileage allowances are made for out-of-town customers.

The clincher in judging a suspect operation is whether they will take an order over the phone. Most legitimate operators will take phone orders but the theme of bait and switchers is by "appointment only." Obviously if you can't order by phone, you must go to the store. That gives the sales staff a crack at switching you.

If you are lured to the "bait" by low prices, you are shown meat that looks terrible, even though it may be U.S. graded meat. When you question the quality of the beef, the sales person agrees enthusiastically and offers some better quality sides. This meat will usually cost much more than the advertised meat. If you object that you can't afford the higher-priced meat, you're countered with an installment contract, so that you also wind up paying high finance charges.

If you are not interested in a side or quarter of beef but in steaks or roasts you may be shown a "bundle" or "rack" or beef instead of the precise name that better indicates the tenderness and value of a particular cut. Unless you are advised of the grade, kind, and amount of the various cuts in a "bundle" or "rack", buy with caution.

Another practice to watch out for is substituting cuts from the forequarter for hindquarter cuts and substituting lower grades of meat for higher grades.

Not satisfied with having persuaded a buyer into paying more than the advertised price for the meat, some bait-and-switch operators have loaded customers with excessive amounts of beef. One such customer called the University to find out how much meat he should expect from a side. When queried, it was learned he was sold 1,250 pounds of meat, more than four times the yield from a side of beef.

Look with suspicion at firms that advertise a great deal, change their names, disparage the meat they have advertised at special prices, and press you to buy beyond your pocketbook.

PEACH FLAMES

4 large fresh peaches
4 large plain cookies
¼ cup brandy
2 egg whites
⅔ cup confectioners' sugar

Drain the canned peaches (If using them) If using fresh peaches, scald them in boiling water, then remove the skins. Halve and pit, then cut into slices Put a cookie in each of four greased individual baking dishes. Sprinkle the cookies with the brandy and cover with the peach slices. Beat the egg whites until very stiff then fold in the confectioners' sugar. Pipe the meringue on to the peaches to form a peak. Bake in a hot oven (450 degrees F.) for two to three minutes, until the meringue is lightly browned and firm. Serve hot or warm.

Variation: Used canned peach halves or peeled, pitted fresh peach halves. Arrange the peach halves in a baking dish, cut sides uppermost, and fill the hollows in the peaches with chocolate ice cream or cranberry sauce - (Mix a little brandy with the cranberry sauce, if you like,) Top with the meringue and bake as above

PERFECT PEACH JAM

About 2 pounds fully ripe peaches
3 tablespoons lemon juice
5 cups granulated sugar
1 package (1¾ ounces) powdered pectin
¾ cup water

Peel, pit and chop peaches. If skins are hard to remove, blanch in boiling water for one minute; then plunge into cold water. You should have 2¼ cups prepared fruit. Stir in lemon juice, and sugar; then process exactly as follows: stir well until the sugar is incorporated. Continue stirring slowly for about 10 minutes. Set aside Put the pectin and water in a small saucepan, and bring to a boil over medium heat. Cook at a fullrolling boil for 1 minute. (A few sugar crystals may remain, but they will not affect quality.) Remove from heat and immediately add to fruit mixture while stirring. Stir vigorously for an additional 3 minutes. Quickly ladle the jam into small containers and cover tightly.

Let stand at room temperature until set (up to 24 hours.) After jam is set, freeze or refrigerate. If jam fails to set, or it is too soft, bring it to a full boil and it will thicken on cooling. Conversely, if jam seems too firm, simply stir to soften. Makes five to six cups

Variation: For Spicy Peach Jam add ¼ teaspoon each ground cinnamon, allspice and cloves to the prepared fruit. Then proceed as above.

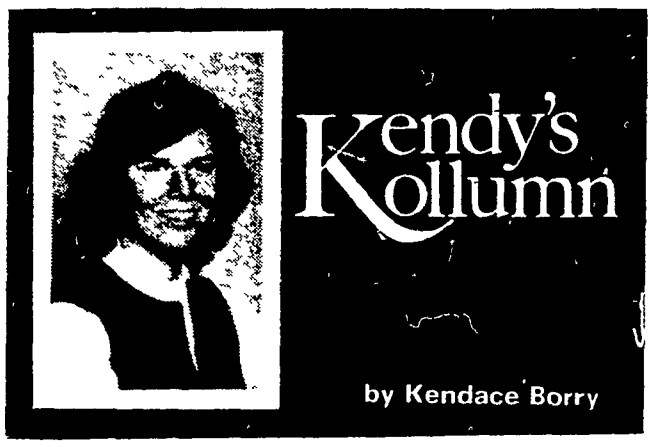
NOW! Before It's Too Late! Practice
FARM SAFETY



There is a new arrival in the sheep flock on the Borry farm and its name is Moped A five month old lamb that promises to be a beauty, from the moment the animal walked onto the place she had control of the entire operation

You see, Moped has one slight problem, if you can call it that She has decided that she prefers human company to that of the four legged creatures

She would rather go for a walk with me than sleep under the shade trees with her woolie buddies She prefers the grass in the yard where she can see the occupants of the house over that in the pasture

When she feels that she has been neglected for far too long she comes to the gate, sticks her head through, and voices her complaints loudly and continuously Unfortunately, this has not endeared her to some of the family members

She earned her name Moped because she is all movement She doesn't walk, she bounds from one spot to another with great energy Afraid to miss anything that happens on the place, she rushes about checking to make sure that everything is going as it should She may be the new animal in the flock but she is sure that she can manage everything on the 50 acres better than all others Already she leads the pack

The only way to get her attention off 'bossing the world' is to rattle the feed bucket Then she flies to her pen from wherever she is, with her ears flopping the whole way And as long as there is grain in her dish, peace rules

But as soon as she is done eating, the newest overseer will be back checking on life on the farm, and making sure that those humans are doing their work

Ag Progress was not only for the adults

By SALLY BAIR
Staff Writer

UNIVERSITY PARK – For a child, Ag Progress Days held a series of special delights, beginning a mile or so before one even parked the car. High in the air were huge balloons beckoning the young and old to the exhibits

Following the closest path to stand directly under the balloons led through a maze of equipment which can only be described as monstrous by a three-year-old.

But the huge buildings, the fast moving equipment and the many attractions in the fields paled in comparison to several adventures awaiting at the various tents in the educational area. For any young child who discovered it, the children's tent was clearly the most popular place on the research farm, and for any parent whose offspring found it, the tent offered a pleasant respite from the heat and the exhaustion which sets in early and persistently in pre-schoolers

Volunteers from the Central Pennsylvania District Libraries held programs every hour on the hour, including such wonderful child-pleasers as stories, songs, rhythm bands and crafts. Paula Wertz of the Centre County Library even patiently taught the ancient craft of origami, or paper folding to a capacity crowd of young children who followed her every direction to the letter and came home with beautiful, paper puppies. There were also finger puppets and bookmarks to be made

The sophisticated exhibits in the other tents could not compete with the lure of puppets, storybooks and snacks.

If children could be coerced into leaving the children's tent for more than the short interval between programs, there were other treats for them. In the youth area, a rocketry demonstration held the attention of young and old alike, and several demonstrations on the care and training of horses were equally interesting to the pre-school set.

And wonder of wonders, there was a talking cow. Now the talking cow clearly was not the same kind of animal found at the dairy department's exhibit, but youngsters are not too discriminating, and many stood for a long time, entranced with this four legged creature who asked their names, described their clothing and chatted about their day at Ag Progress Days, all the while telling them the importance of drinking enough milk for proper nutrition.

(Turn to Page 62)

The children who went to Ag Progress were fascinated by the activities planned for them at the area of Ag Progress which was specifically set aside for their interests.

Ag Progress

The cow's personality changed about every half hour, about the same time Pennsylvania's local Dairy Princesses showed up to take their turn in the promotion booth, but the children never noticed the voice change. According to Mrs. Joyce Graybill, of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, "Tiny the Talking Cow" was kept in operation through the efforts of 25 local Dairy Princesses and the current State Dairy Princess Sandy Miller. The girls rotated the chore and also helped the milkshake booth close by.

For the small fry there were many surprises as they walked the large expanse of grounds with their parents - enough distractions to keep them going to see what might be discovered next. Baby chicks hatching were interesting, as was a small fawn, and Elro the robot was beyond belief.

While the daddies and mommies were entranced with huge tractors or the latest in microwave ovens, the wee ones could find something especially joyful to them - and that made the whole family happy.

Take a look at the facts

Choosing the right silo is an important decision because it's going to affect the success of your operation for years to come. As a good manager, you have to weigh the facts to make a profitable decision.

Consider a Star Topper from Star Silo. It has all the features you're looking for in a top unloading silo.

- Walls are made of solid 5" concrete for greater strength and acid resistance. A network of reinforcing steel in the middle of the wall, where it's protected from silage acids and weather, helps make the walls even stronger.
- Star silos have smooth, solid walls that need no refinishing. There are no joints for you to seal. And, the natural light grey color aids in reflecting heat away from the inside contents.
- The aluminized steel dome roof is standard equipment. It's weathertight to protect from the elements. And, the roof is bolted to the silo with a drip edge to keep the silo clean.
- Star Silos feature an exclusive door system. No other type of silo has the structural strength to offer a 24" wide continuous doorway formed with concrete. The doors give you easy access into the silo from the chute.

Your Star salesman can help you choose the silo that's right for you. After you've taken a look at the facts, you'll be convinced that a Star silo is your best buy.

You can contact a Star salesman at:

CHRIS is a rarity. Very few bulls ever have a plus 2,000 PD for milk. Rarer still are the bulls who are also plus on type. CHRIS is plus for both. In fact; CHRIS is the highest milk bull on the July sire summary.

CHRIS was bred for TYPE and PRODUCTION. CHRIS'S pedigree is full of EX and VG cows with records of over 20,000M, with several going over 25,000. His Dam and her Maternal Sister were Honorable Mention All-American Produce of Dam in 1971.

When you treat bloody scours (swine dysentery), you're only fighting part of the problem

Bloody scours is a cyclic disease Treatment with Lincomix® (lincomycin) will disrupt the cycle and bring it under control

But once treatment stops bloody scours can, and often does, break out again even among animals you thought had recovered

Protect against bloody scours all the way to market with Lincomix.

For effective control of bloody scours all the way to market, start your herd on Lincomix at the first signs of the disease The treatment level is 100 grams of lincomycin per ton of feed After three weeks at this level, or following disappearance of symptoms, continue medication at 40 grams lincomycin per ton of feed up to six days before slaughter

And on those farms with a history of bloody scours, feed 40 grams lincomycin per ton of feed to keep outbreaks from recurring even though symptoms are not apparent

See us today Lincomix belongs in your hog rations!

Lincomix—THE HEAVYWEIGHT feed additive for the treatment and control of bloody scours from start to finish.

Look for lincomycin on the feed tag at the following dealers:

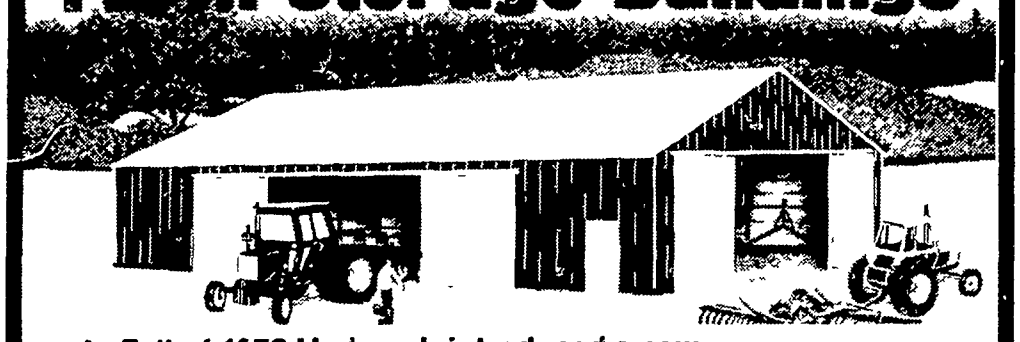
Farm Storage Buildings



In Fall of 1976 Umbaugh introduced a new line of standard machinery storage buildings. The innovations in design, materials and construction methods have made these the best machinery storage buildings available.

These buildings have no frills. When a farmer buys an Umbaugh building, his money is invested in durable materials and sound engineering practices.

Farmers who shop around usually buy from Umbaugh. We invite comparisons of price and quality.

28' x 36'

Facts for Dairymen

By Alan Bair
Assoc. County Agent
Lancaster, Pa.

Many dairymen are experiencing severe problems with coliform mastitis this Summer. A clinical case of coliform mastitis can kill a cow overnight and at the same time drive the dairymen frantic trying to get to the root of the problem.

The unfortunate dairyman that has experienced this problem in his herd soon learns to recognize the telltail signs of an extremely sick cow. A high percentage of coliform infected cows would die from the toxins produced if they were not treated immediately.

Like most diseases, preventing coliform mastitis is a more effective control than is treatment. Since coliforms are environmental bacteria, prevention and control center on sanitation.

Clean cows in clean surroundings are a must in controlling this problem. Dairymen in trouble must do everything possible to keep the cows out of the mud and manure. Creating a new pasture in a clean hay field can go a long way in solving the problem in many herds.

Cows that are kept inside must have clean well maintained stalls. Bedding of certain types is often suspected of influencing the incidence of coliform mastitis. The important fact remains that clean cows are the key to the problem.

Another problem area is inadequate washing of cows in preparation for milking. Getting the end of the teat clean is so important and often overlooked.

As with other mastitis problems, early detection and treatment are extremely important. Additionally, teat dipping, good milking practices, proper equipment and dry cow treatment are essential to the control of all forms of mastitis.

If you have been battling coliform mastitis in your herd this summer and feel that you are losing, hope for cooler weather. Winter will bring other problems, but it will help reduce your coliform problem.

Kirk, Schmuck, Henley, Mase, and Yoder show grand champions at district FFA dairy contest

An unusual turn of events was experienced by Tom Kirk and Susan Heilinger during the FFA Guernsey Show. Their young animals were named grand and reserve grand champion, respectively.

KUTZTOWN — More than 60 dairy animals representing five colored breeds were shown here last week during the 23rd annual Pennsylvania Southeastern Regional FFA District Dairy Show. FFA members from nine counties competed. The represented counties were: Berks, Bucks, Chester, Lancaster, Lebanon, Lehigh, Montgomery, Northampton, and Schuylkill.

In a show which saw few surprises as familiar exhibitors kept their hold on major titles, one unusual turn of events did occur. Tom Kirk of Solanco and Susan Heilinger of ELCO, both of them exhibiting junior entries in the Guernsey show, finished first and second, respectively, when the breed champions were picked. The senior entries were left out of the running for grand champion positions on both counts. In another somewhat unusual, but not really surprising development, Lebanon Countian Gary Mase took home both top rosettes in the Brown Swiss show. Following are the results by breed:

GUERNSEYS

Seventeen-year old Tom Kirk, the son of Mr and Mrs. Francis Kirk, Peach Bottom, exhibited a home-bred daughter of Kelsos Corporals Guard to the grand champion position. Just a year old on July 22, the stylish animal outclassed all other entries, regardless of age.

The reserve spot went to Susan Heilinger of ELCO, whose senior yearling stood first in its class and then went on to reserve junior and reserve grand champion honors. The animal is sired by Arizona Farms Half Century.

The senior champion banner was taken by Harold Monk of the Lehigh County FFA Chapter and Susan Heilinger captured the reserve spot. Both exhibited 3-year olds.

Blue ribbon winners in the contest were:

Junior Calves - 1. Tina Bucher, Solanco; 2. Tim Hanks, Solanco; Intermediate Calf - 1. Tom Kirk, 2. William Zollers, Jr., Kutztown; Senior Yearling - 1. Susan Heilinger; 3 and 4 Year Olds - 1 Harold Monk, 2 Susan Heilinger

JERSEYS

Solanco's Warren Schmuck won the grand championship with his Milestones Generator daughter which stood first in the 3 and 4 year old class. The reserve grand champion was an intermediate calf brought into the ring by Roderick Watson, Jr. of Owen J. Roberts. An aged cow shown by William Hoffman of ELCO was reserve senior champion, while a senior yearling exhibited by Marilyn Deaven of Norlebco received the nod for reserve junior champion.

Blue ribbon winners were:

Junior calves - Mark Deaven, Norlebco; Intermediate Calves - 1. Roderick Watson, 2. Marilyn Deaven, Norlebco; Senior Calves - Marilyn Deaven; Senior Yearlings - 1. Marilyn Deaven, 2. Roy Stoner, Solanco; 3 and 4 Year Olds - Warren Schmuck; Aged Cows - William Hoffman

AYRSHIRES

Two Chester Countians laid claim to four of the top six spots in this show, won by Kennard Henley III of Octorara. His sister, Sharon Henley Nolan captured both junior champion positions. Ed Kulp, a member of the Owen J. Roberts FFA Chapter, pinned down the reserve senior and grand champion slots.

Henley, a member of one of the country's best known Ayrshire showmanship families, won the show handily with his 4-year old

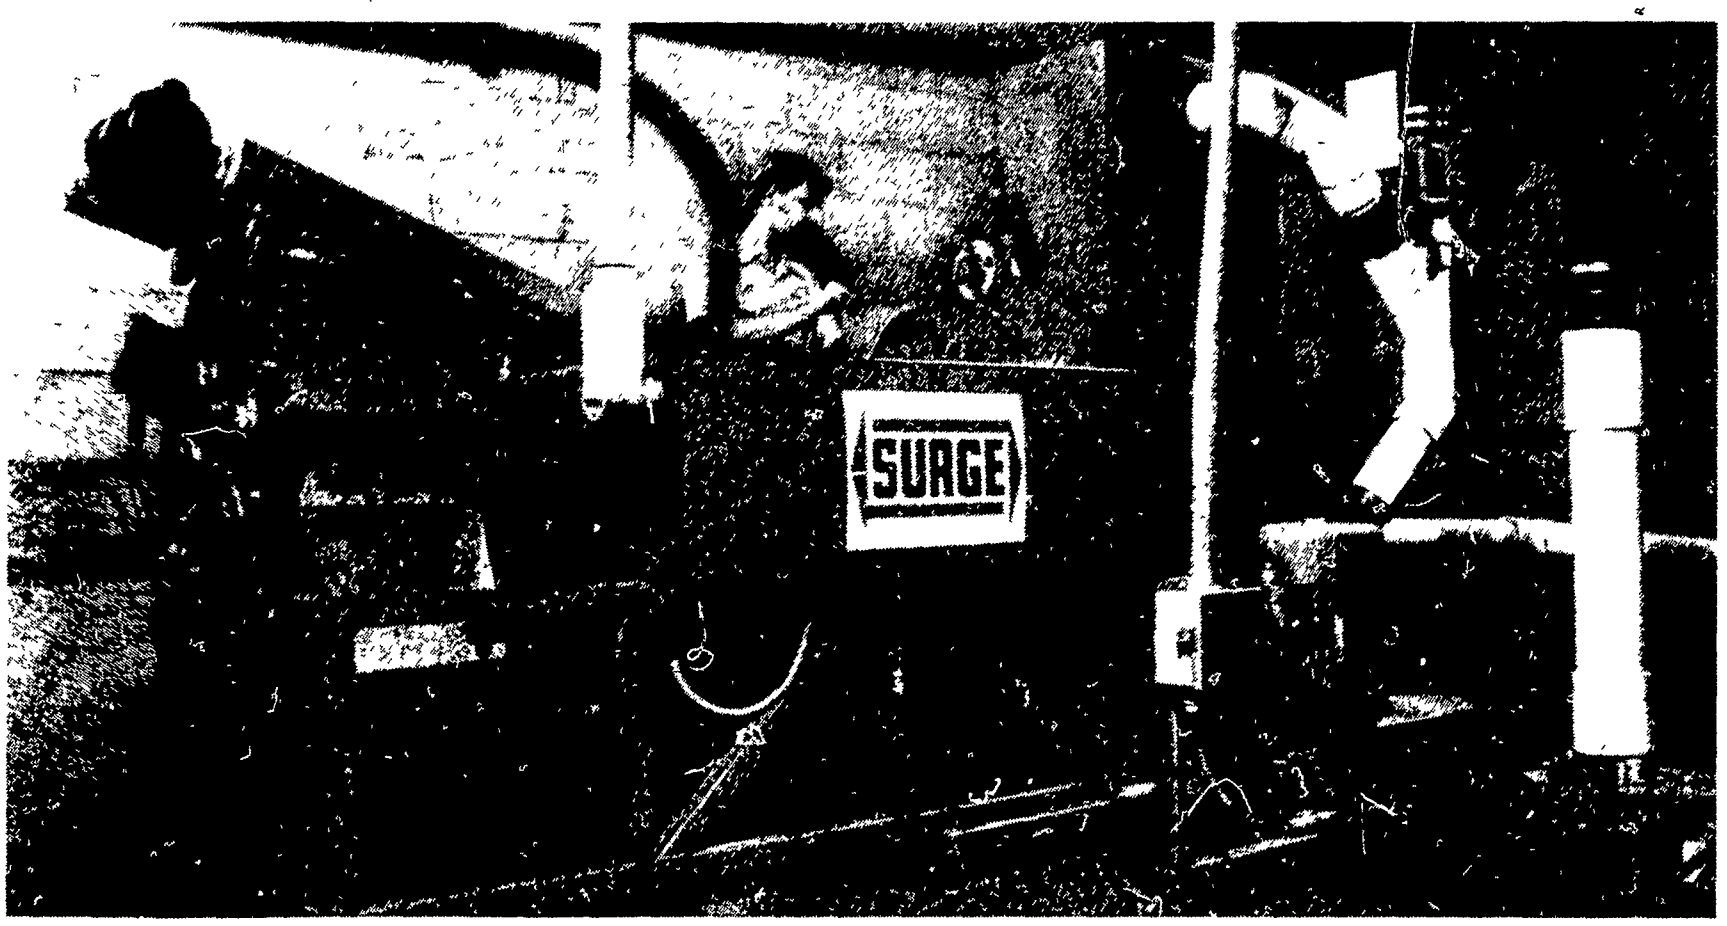
DAIRYMEN!!



There's a new and easy way to handle manure. It can even generate extra income. It's TRU from Surge.

If you're a dairyman, you owe yourself a look at the rugged, new TRU manure handling system from Surge

The Surge TRU automatically converts raw dairy manure into two valuable, easy-to-handle by-products A high nutrient liquid fertilizer, and a low-moisture, near-odorless solid that can be used as a high quality source of bedding or sold as garden mulch

Incoming manure is first agitated in a small, temporary holding pit located beneath the TRU The agitated slurry is then pumped through 4 sets of pressurized rubber rollers and perforated steel drums to separate the solids from the liquids The solid has the look and consistency of commercial peat moss The liquid retains 85% of the fertilizer value of regular manure, but because of its water-like consistency can be easily transferred to a lagoon or field with no further agitation Can be easily handled by tank spreaders or irrigation systems

If you're tired of the day in, day out hassle of conventional manure handling, check out the new Surge TRU manure handling system With a 100 cow herd, you could easily convert a messy, smelly problem into $5000-$8000 worth of high nutrient fertilizer, plus 36,000-54,000 cu ft of quality bedding or saleable soil conditioner per year

For more information write or call: Longacre Electrical Service, Inc., Main Street, Bally, Pa. 19503. Efficient manure handling and extra income, too? It's TRU from Surge.

Nitrite ban thought 'unwarranted'

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The American Farm Bureau Federation recently urged the Secretaries of Agriculture and HEW to wait until all facts are in before considering any ban on nitrites as a cured meat preservative.

Telegrams from AFBF President Allan Grant went to Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland and HEW Secretary Joseph Califano. The comtemplated ban on nitrites is based on a study from Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Grant pointed out that the coordinator of that study, Dr Paul Newberne, thinks a ban is "unwarranted" without three or four years of additional tests.

Dr. Newberne wants to study the effect of nitrites on several test animals, not just one strain of laboratory rats. His finding that nitrites can have "an adverse effect on one strain of rats under certain laboratory conditions" was interpreted by USDA and HEW to mean that nitrites are universally carcinogenic.

The test rats in the MIT study were fed massive doses of sodium nitrite. A human would have to consume nearly 600 pounds of cured meats per day to equal the dosage given to the test animals.

1979 set-aside wheat program set

WASHINGTON, D.C. – Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland today announced a 20 per cent set-aside program for the 1979 wheat crop, identical to this year's "highly successful" program.

By complying with the announced set-aside, wheat farmers will be eligible for a wheat loan of $2.35 a bushel, and a target price of $3.40 per bushel, also the same as the 1978 program.

Secretary Bergland called the 1979 program a "stabilizing measure designed to benefit both producers and consumers."

"If farmers use the 1979 program as well as they did this year, we believe that farm wheat prices will be maintained," the secretary said.

"This program is also anti-inflationary. These provisions will not add to food price inflation," Secretary Bergland said.

USDA studies show that no set-aside in 1979 would result in U.S. wheat stocks being well above needs, considerably lower farm prices, higher government payments, and a decrease in export earnings from wheat, Bergland added.

"Good participation in the 20 per cent set-aside should result in wheat stocks on June 1, 1980 near 7.5 per cent of the projected world wheat use or approximately 1.135 billion bushels," he said.

The Secretary reiterated the President's commitment to wheat reserves of 550 million bushels (15 million metric tons (MMT)), including the 400 million bushel farmer-owned reserve and the special emergency reserve for food aid commitments of 150 million bushels (4 MMT).

"This Administration will continue to take actions that will ensure a strong family farm system, our commitments to world food security, and our reputation as a dependable supplier of quality products in world markets.

Bergland concluded, "The world situation that we're facing this year is not unlike last year's. The successes of the 1978 wheat program - the set-aside, the loan and farmer-owned reserve programs, and disaster and deficiency payments - provides conslusive evidence that our basic policies and programs should be continued. The average season farm price for the 1978 wheat crop is expected to be about $2.75 a bushel – up from $2.31 for the 1977 crop. I'm certain that farmers will concur in our decisions to continue these programs."

The 20 per cent set-aside means that for every 100 acres of wheat planted for harvest as grain, 20 acres must be set aside.

The 1979 program will permit wheat farmers to graze their planted wheat for six months of the year, however a graze-out and haying program has not been included in the program.

The national program acreage of 57.1 million acres is the number of acres of wheat needed to be planted in order to produce enough for expected domestic and export needs and carryover.

The Secretary announced a voluntary reduction of 15-per cent for 1979 wheat. Program participants who reduce their 1979 planted acreage by at least 15 per cent from their 1978 acreage will be eligible for target-price coverage on 100 per cent of their 1979 planted wheat acreage. The program will give credit to farmers who reduced their acreage in 1978 so that their base for 1979 reduction will be the same as it was in 1978.

Soviet grains staying cool

WASHINGTON, D.C. – Primarily as the result of an usually cool growing season, 1978 does not appear to be a good year for corn or grain sorghum in the USSR, a USDA team reported recently on its return from a 3-week study trip in the Soviet Union.

Because temperatures have been significantly lower than normal in the major corn growing regions – as well as throughout the main agricultural areas of the Soviet Union – it is likely that a large proportion of the 3.3 million hectares of corn seeded for grain will not mature sufficiently to be harvested as grain.

Canning and freezing is more popular today

By SALLY BAIR
Staff Writer

UNIVERSITY PARK — The women who went to Ag Progress Days last week may have had a brief vacation from their canning and freezing, but they didn't forget it. One of the most popular spots in the home living area was a booth put together by the Department of Food Science in Penn State's College of Agriculture where qualified people answered questions about canning, freezing, and drying.

The flow of people was continuous; thousands of pieces of literature on preserving foods was distributed; and literally hundreds of very specific questions about food processing were answered.

Dr. Jerry Kuhn, professor of food science, said, "We are offering education in step with interest. There is a growing interest in home drying, and perhaps the most unusual part is the number of men who stopped by the booth." Kuhn estimated that about six per cent of home canners are men. He said several men asked precisely where to find the materials needed to build home dryers for food preservation.

Kuhn complimented the women. "Their knowledge base has improved over the years. They have developed a tremendous body of good questions about preserving."

In a short time the number of people preserving food has increased dramatically. Kuhn noted, "Just five years ago there were a fraction of the canners we have today. Five years ago two per cent of all the canned foods consumed were prepared at home. Today nearly, ten per cent of all canned foods is preserved at home.

One service provided by the people at the exhibit was testing guages for home pressure canners. Mary Keith, graduate student in the Department of Food Science, said they had tested about 15-20 the first day of the event. Many people said they would have brought theirs along if they had known of the service. Mary said it is recommended that the guages be tested once a year.

Some questions were difficult, like the one this reporter overheard; "How much is a jingle?" With understanding, Miss Keith and Dr. Kuhn set their pressure canner and showed the young woman just what a "jingle" is, and helped her feel confident about her canner.

Miss Keith said, "The interest in food preservation is a good trend and one which will continue to grow. People are coming back to canning and preserving their own food because of the high cost of food." She said both old and new canners stopped and chatted, and most people asked very specific questions. One man, for instance, wanted to know every step in canning applesauce.

The section devoted to drying foods was creating much interest. Cathy Adams, a research assistant, said, "There's a great deal of interest in drying. It's really coming back in." She said many people stop and tell her how they have been drying for years, often with the use of a wood stove.

There are advantages, Cathy points out. "For one thing you don't have to maintain a freezer. There is not the expense of buying jars and there isn't the trouble of canning. The energy cost is greater than canning, but some people don't want the trouble of a pressure canner."

Plans are available for constructing a home dryer, and Cathy points out that it can be built in a day. She said it is simply to be considered another form of food

Lebanon FFA'ers sweep area Holstein show

KUTZTOWN — Lebanon County FFA'ers won the junior, senior and grand championship titles last week during the 23rd annual Pennsylvania Southeastern Regional FFA District Dairy Show, held here at the Fairgrounds. Senior and grand champion honors were won by Kirby Horst, while Gary Lentz was awarded the junior champion ribbon. Lebanon County FFA'ers then went on to win first place in the County Groups of Four class.

Horst, a recent double winner in the Holstein show at the Lebanon Fair, continued his winning streak. The 19-year old Lebanon Countian, son of Mr. and Mrs. Irwin B. Horst, Newmanstown, won the grand championship with his aged cow, Showerdale Reflection Roburke, a daughter of Penn-Gate Reflection Admiral.

Horst is a 1977 graduate of Eastern Lebanon County (ELCO) High School and a still active member of the FFA organization there. He keeps his own herd of registered Holsteins on his parents' dairy farm and is an experienced exhibitor of the breed.

One Row Picker

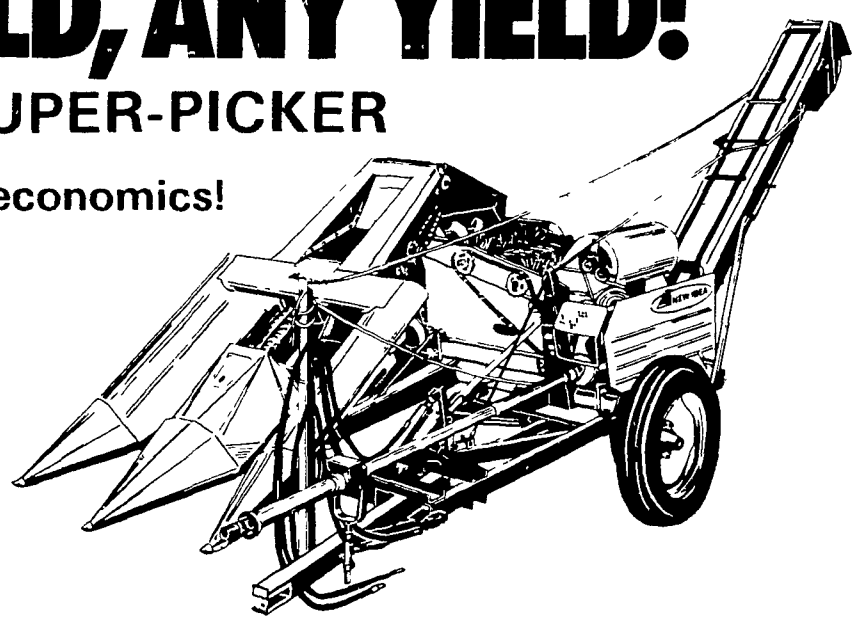
BIG CAPACITY, COST-SAVING FAVORITE 1-ROW SUPERPICKER

Built For Long, Trouble-Free Service . . .

From the long, tapered floating points and snapping rolls all the way back to its wide wagon elevator, Superpicker does an outstanding job of bringing in your crop . . . And with your Superpicker, corn cribs, and Mother Nature doing the work, you don't have to worry about the rising cost of fuel for drying.

TACKLES ANY FIELD, ANY YIELD!

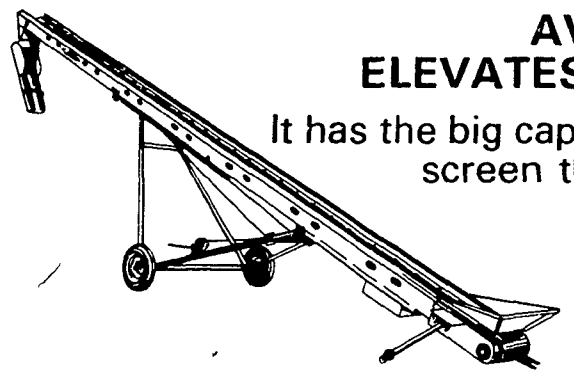
TWO-ROW PULL SUPER-PICKER



SUPERPICKERS . . . 3 steps to harvesting economics!

1. When you invest in an Avco New Idea Superpicker, your initial cost is much lower than that of a self-propelled corn harvester. 2. By cribbing ear corn or shelling when the moisture level is down, you're letting Mother Nature do the drying - without charge. You're avoiding the high cost of drying equipment and conserving valuable fuel. 3. New Idea's unbeatable combination of efficient harvesting and long-life features means you'll get maximum return on your investment.

DESIGNED FOR BIG CAPACITY!



AVCO NEW IDEA 177 FLIGHT ELEVATOR ELEVATES ANYTHING FROM SHELLED CORN TO BALES

It has the big capacity and special features farmers appreciate . . . like a shelled corn screen that separates shelled corn from ear corn. The flights are designed for maximum load carrying . . . they're cupped and pulled from the center to avoid tilting. Constructed from galvanized steel, it comes in your choice of lengths and type of drives and is ready to elevate anything from corn to bales!

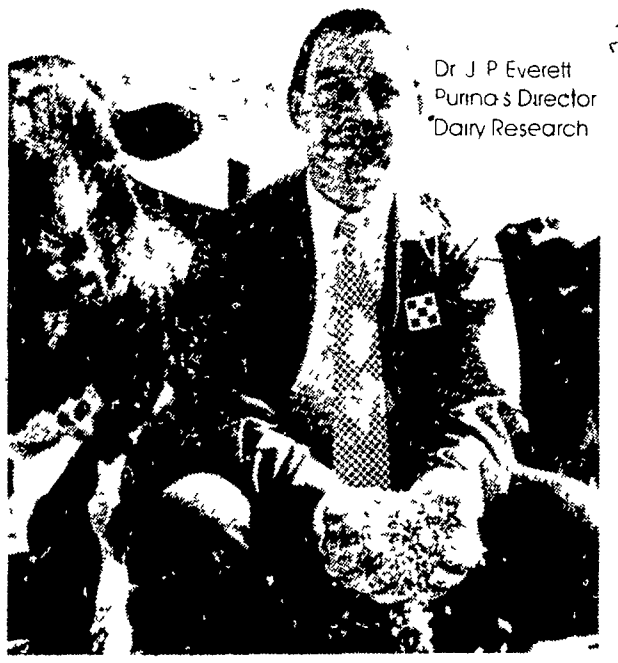
"Test Cow is Purina's Super Energy, Super Value Milking Ration"...



Dr J P Everett
Purina's Director
Dairy Research

"There are lots of so-called 'high energy' milking rations around that claim to have a high energy, high TDN content and at a low cost," says Dr. Everett. "The real measurement of a milking ration's value is the income it produces over feed cost, not the price.

"At the Purina Dairy Research Center, we are proud of Purina Test Cow . . . proud that it is available for America's dairymen. It is truly a "super" high energy ration. In fact, it contains the highest energy and lowest fiber of all Purina milking rations.

"I don't know of any milking ration I would recommend more highly."

Certainly all milking rations are not alike. So don't settle for less than the best. Ask us about Test Cow today.

STOP NUTRIENT LOSSES AND PRESERVE QUALITY SILAGE

Tests prove that Beacon Silage Pre-Serv* will reduce nutrient losses that can occur during silage fermentation. These losses are a result of excessive oxidation and seepage. Both can be controlled by using Beacon Silage Pre-Serv.
The result—more nutrients for milk production in every silo of treated corn silage. In fact, for every $1.70 invested, Beacon Silage Pre-Serv returns up to $4 in increased energy.
Apply it right at the chopper or blower. Beacon Silage Pre-Serv keeps your milk profits high! Beacon Headquarters, Cayuga New York.

FFA members invited to enter Hesston Co.'s ag message contest

HESSTON, Kans. -- Hesston Corporation, with the cooperation of Hesston Farm Equipment dealers throughout the United States, is sponsoring a contest among members of the Future Farmers of America for their suggestions on a "Salute to Agriculture" which will be developed into a public service message that will be presented during the telecast of the 1978 National Finals Rodeo in December.

Officially sanctioned by the National Future Farmers of America, the contest calls for FFA members to submit in one hundred words or less the message they would like to tell the American public about the importance of agriculture to the economy and standard of living in North America.

The public service message, which will be developed around the first place entry will be initially aired over a special Hesston Rodeo network of about 200 television stations in the United States and Canada.

The FFA member submitting the winning entry in the contest will receive a $500 First Place cash prize. There will be four $250 second place winners and ten $100 third place winners for a total prize of $2,500.

The contest is open to any of the 500,000 bonafide, dues-paying members of the FFA. Entry forms and rules are available from Hesston dealers, Hesston Corporation, or the National FFA Center.

All entries are to be mailed directly to Hesston Corporation, Hesston, Kansas 67072, Att: Salute to Agriculture Contest. Deadline for entries is September 30, 1978.

This is the fifth consecutive year which Hesston Corporation and Hesston Farm Equipment dealers have exclusively sponsored the telecast of the National Finals Rodeo. Each year they donate part of their commercial time to a "Salute to Agriculture". In 1977 the National Cattlemen's Association was asked to submit suggestions and the winning entry came from E.T. Evans, Boise, Idaho rancher.

The team of Ted Christiansen and his registered half-Arabian won the junior grooming and showmanship competition during York's 4-H horse competition at the fairgrounds.

As a grand climax to her last year in 4-H activities, Beverly Brown was named the champion in the senior division of grooming and showmanship at York County's 4-H horse and pony roundup.

Winning riders named in York 4-H roundup

YORK – "Spirit O' Wind" and owner-rider Beverly Brown swept across the York Fairgrounds to capture the senior grooming and showmanship awards during the recent York 4-H Horse and Pony Roundup.

The competition was Beverly's last on the county level; she's 19 years old and will be ineligible for 4-H membership next year. But it was a finale to remember and a first in her horse-project career.

The winning animal was a registered Quarterhorse, now four years old, and bred and raised by Beverly. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Harold Brown, Delta R3, Beverly is currently employed on her parents dairy operation as the farm herdsman.

Thirteen-year-old Ted Christiansen, Lewisberry R2, was chosen the junior grooming and showmanship winner. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ted Christiansen.

"Mir-razh" is Ted's registered half-Abrabian and he's been working with the animal for five years. The winning was the first championship for the young man.

Other placings in the senior division were: Nancy Bahn, second; Louise Toner, third; David Ducharme, fourth; Monty Stetzer, fifth and Kelly Preston, sixth.

Junior winners included: Kenny Starner, second; Kristi Hynson, third; Deedre Capuano, fourth; Kelly Troup fifth, and Lisa Helder, sixth.

When your new home is five years old, what fuel will be available to heat it?

Conventional heating systems tie you to a single fuel. In these times of uncertain price and supply, that's a risky situation.

The HS Tarm Type OT boiler for hot-water central heating systems is different. It burns wood, coal, oil, or gas, and can heat with electricity as well. When you're not burning solid fuel, automatic controls switch to the backup fuel of your choice.

Installing an HS Tarm Type OT boiler in your new home will give you maximum flexibility in choosing your heating fuel, year after year. There's no reason to settle for less.

Dairy contest results posted for Cecil County, Md. Fair

FAIR HILL, Md. — Eric Knutsen, Rising Sun, Md., knows how to fit and show dairy cattle. He proved it at the Cecil County Fair, which was held here last month. Winning the showmanship and fitting contest in his age group (seniors) was the first in a series of accomplishments during the dairy shows. When it was all over, he was named all breeds showing and fitting champion.

Becky Frederick, Nottingham, Pa., was named senior champion showman and fitter for Jersey exhibitors. Lisa Davis, Earleville, took the Guernsey title among juniors, while Glenn Davis, Earleville, captured the honor in the senior division and then went on to be named champion. The champion fitter and showman among junior Holstein exhibitors was Freddie Schrader of Earleville.

Following are placings of the show.

JERSEYS

Becky Frederick of Nottingham won nearly every blue ribbon in this contest, coming away with first place entries in the junior calf, senior calf, 2-year old, best three females, and dam and daughter classes. She also won the rosettes for junior, senior, and grand champion.

The only other exhibitor to bring first-place animals into the ring was Joyce Barczewski of Elkton who was at the halter of the top junior yearling and aged cow.

GUERNSEYS

Glenn Davis of Earleville came within two placings of sweeping the entire show. He won all but the junior and senior yearling classes, which went to Holly England of Rising Sun and Lisa Davis of Earleville, respectively. As winner of most every class, the young man naturally enough had the junior champion, senior champion, and grand champion.

HOLSTEINS

Cecil County Fair winners

Farm Queen did her best

FAIR HILL, Md. - A young lady who was named 1978 Farm Queen during opening ceremonies of the Cecil County Fair, held here last month, lived up to her title in enviable fashion by exhibiting champion beef cattle and swine. In addition, Molly Johnson of Nottingham, was named a champion fitter and showman on several occasions.

In the beef show, the new Farm Queen exhibited the first place heavyweight and eventual champion steer. In addition, she was champion in the senior division for fitting and showmanship. The Southern Cecil County Young Farmers rewarded her efforts with the Ted Mechling Memorial Trophy. In that same contest, Tim Clugston of Elkton was named junior champion for showmanship and fitting. He was exhibitor of the lightweight cahmpion.

Miss Johnson continued her winning ways in the market hog contest by winning both champion and reserve champion ribbons and again being named senior showmanship and fitting winner.

Betsy Johnson, also of Nottingham, and David Moore of Elkton placed second and third, respectively, in the showmanship and fitting contest. Miss Johson won the lightweight contest with her entry.

In the market lamb show, which had 17 entries shown by eight exhibitors, Ross Johnson of Nottingham won the showmanship and fitting title among junior contestants. Pam and Christie Johnson, both of Nottingham, were second and third, respectively. The senior contest was won by Tom Barczewski of Elkton, with Dora Weaver, Perryville, placing second, and Jen Johnson, Nottingham, filling the third slot.

The champion lamb was bought by Brick House Farm for $2.75 per pound and Tucker Mackie purchased the reserve champion for $2.15 per pound. Other buyers of lambs were: Warren Johnson; Aberdeen Sales Co.; Kilby, Inc.; Southern States of Rising Sun, and Farmers and Mechanics Insurance Co.

William Baker purchased the champion hog for $1.60 per pound and Southern States of Rising Sun bouth the reserve champion for $1.40 per pound. Hileman's Grinding Service, Steve Krauss, Delmar Equipment and Pioneer Valley Farm also purchased hogs.

The 4-H'ers held their first livestock sale during the Fair.

Truckers asked to limit driving

CAMP HILL – The Pennsylvania Motor Truck Association, in conjunction with its Council of Safety Supervisors, has issued an appeal to all Pennsylvania truck operators to limit their services to emergency or essential deliveries during the Labor Day weekend.

This request for restricted operations also urges all drivers who must be on the road during this period to be especially alert during the holiday and to extend every possible courtesy of other highway users

Ag Progress Days featured unique vegetable fruit gardens

ROCK SPRINGS – Anyone interested in home gardening was treated to unusual displays of fruits and vegetables during Penn State University's Ag Progress Days, held last week at research farms and facilities near here.

Vegetable and fruit garden plantings, located just outside the Headquarters Building, were designed to show a rather wide choice of vegetable types. Varieties included several All-America winners. New strains of standard-sized tomatoes presented colors on mature fruit ranging from red, pink, orange, yellow and white to green. Various cherry and patio types of tomatoes were also shown.

Elsewhere, plots containing several All-America Selection trials of vegetables were featured. Dr. Peter A. Ferretti of the Department of Horticulture is an All-America Selections judge. He indicated the AAS trials include 12 entries of miscellaneous vegetables.

A plot of melons showed extensive comparisons of promising new watermelon and muskmelon selections. These are growing alongside standard varieties now recommended for Pennsylvania gardens. Dr. Ferretti said several of the new varieties appear to be better than those now grown.

Evaluations of American holly, planted 19 years ago at the Horticultural Research Farm, were seen during Ag Progress Days. The hollies are being tested for Winter hardiness. Dr. Richard Craig, in charge of the tests, said only 25 per cent of the original plants still exist. In addition, about 150 seedling hollies from a breeding program at Rutgers University are being tested for winter hardiness.

Farmers attending Ag Progress Days had a chance to see an unusual new crop analyzer designed to determine the nutritional value of forages and cereal grains. Used with a mini-computer, the instrument can determine in two minutes the percentages of dry matter, protein, fiber, total digestible nutrients, and calcium and phosphorus in a feed or forage sample.

Dr. John S. Shenk and associates exhibited the crop analyzer at Penn State's hay show tent. Eventually, Dr. Shenk predicts, such instruments will be available to livestock feeders through county agents' offices, feed stores and hay marketing centers.

NEBA expanding facilities

TUNKHANNOCK — Northeast Breeders Association, a member cooperative of Sire Power, Inc., has a new bull barn under construction at its headquarters, here. The new facility, which is expected to be ready for partial occupancy next month, is being built across the driveway from the Sire Power laboratory.

Designated as NEBA's Young Sire Development Complex, the barn is designed to hold 80 sires in waiting from age 15 months to 3½ years. Among the features are wide pens for loose housing - the newest building concept for sires in waiting. Each pen will have a southward facing outside run.

In addition to the barn, there will be a 48x42 foot clinic area for bulls. Sire Power's board of directors has authorized funds for equipping the clinic when it is ready for equipment installation.

Dorsan, Inc., Honesdale, has been contracted by NEBA's board of directors to build the new growing barn and clinic area.

Progress of the building projects will be evident next Saturday when NEBA holds its annual Open House.

Open House is to be "family day" this year, according to NEBA officials. NEBA members are invited to attend with their families. A token fee of $2.00 per immediate family will apply.

The event is planned to be informative, but informal. Also, there will be rides for the kids, clowns, balloons, and people to care for the smaller ones while parents and older children view the program.

Tours of the laboratory and other insights into the operation and management of a breeders' cooperative will be part of the activities. An extra feature will be a talk about Soviet dairying by Mary Sowerby, editor of Sire Power's newsletter. Miss Sowerby spent three months in the Soviet Union.

Beef bar-b-que will be served for lunch.

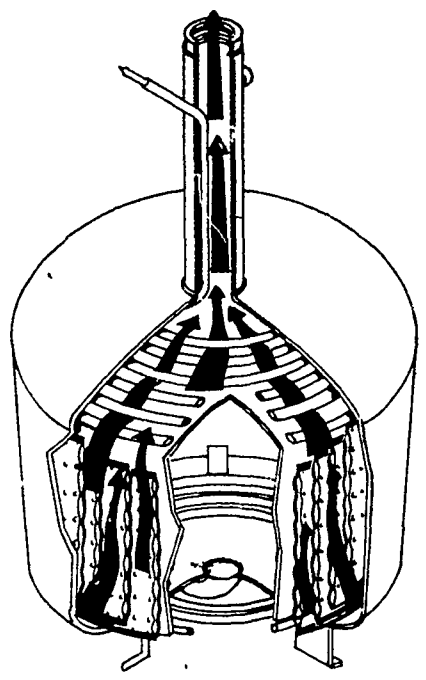
MUELLER FRE-HEATER™

The "HEART" of the Fre-Heater* the unique all stainless steel heat exchanger!



*PATENTED U.S. PATENT NO. 4041728 AND OTHER PATENTS PENDING

ALL STAINLESS STEEL CONSTRUCTION!*
Mueller Fre-Heater heat exchangers are constructed entirely of type 304 stainless steel. The heat exchanger in both models utilize Mueller Temp-Plate a patented heat transfer surface that's in use in more than 60,000 Mueller Milk Coolers around the world.

CHOOSE FROM SEVERAL SIZES AND MODELS!
Mueller Fre-Heaters are available in 2, 3 and 4 H.P. sizes for either HiPerForm or conventional refrigeration systems.

A 2 or 3 H.P. installation normally requires one 120 U.S. gallon water storage tank. 4 H.P. installations may require two 120 gallon water storage tanks.

Mueller Fre-Heaters, Model "B" and Model "C" can be used with either Mueller Milk Coolers or with milk coolers made by other manufacturers.

FREE HOT WATER!
There are many variables that determine how much hot water can be generated, however, a rule of thumb is that a Fre-heater operating on 60 degrees F. well water will produce a volume of 140 degree F. water similar to the amount of milk produced during a milking. In other words, if 100 gallons of milk per milking is produced, approximately 100 gallons of hot water (140 degrees F.) will be generated during each milking. Experience has shown that on most dairy farms, enough hot water is produced to satisfy all hot water requirements.

The Mueller Fre-Heater comes to you from the maker of world famous Mueller Milk Coolers!

PennAg convention speakers named

EPHRATA – Energy, the economy and the environment are three topics set for one of the informative portions of the 100th Annual Convention of PennAg Industries Association. The convention will be held on Sept. 19-21 in Harrisburg. PennAg is a state-wide organization of some 400 Pennsylvania agribusiness firms, and is reported to be the oldest such organization in the country.

The three-day convention will feature trade and historical exhibits, appearances and speeches by key political figures, an annual golf tournament, and an awards banquet.

Wednesday morning, September 20, the state of the economy will be examined by Ted D. Gibson, senior economist at Pittsburgh's Mellon National Bank.

Energy, a vital component of the agribusiness picture, will be discussed by William B. Murray, vice-president for communications at G.P.U. Service Corp., Parsippany, N.J. G.P.U. is a large electric utility whose operating companies include the Philadelphia Electric Co. and Pennsylvania Electric Co., in Pennsylvania and Jersey Central Power & Light Co. in New Jersey.

Speaking on environmental issues will be Dr. C.E. Howes, of the Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University in Blacksburg, Va.

On Thursday morning, a panel of agribusiness presidents will take a look at the current state of their industry. Following the panel, PennAg's director of public relations, Richard Wanner, will present a slide film entitled "A Century of Agribusiness".

On Thursday afternoon, Warren P. Smith, vice-president and director of group sales for Hartford Life Insurance Co., will talk about the effects of social programs on American business and society in general.

Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture Kent Shelhamer will discuss the future of agriculture in the state, while Dr. James Beattie, dean of Penn State's College of Agriculture, will talk about the second century of agribusiness.

Closing out Thursday afternoon's program will be an inspirational address by the Rev. Ernest K. Emurian, Cherrydale Methodist Church in Arlington, Va. His talk is entitled "Where Do You Put The 'I'?".

Grain program comments sought

WASHINGTON, D.C. – The public is being asked to submit ideas and comments on decisions that need to be made on the 1979 feed grains and soybean programs.

Ray Fitzgerald, administrator of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Stabilization and Conservation Service, said most of the decisions are to be made by Nov. 15.

Comments are asked concerning the following determinations to be made for the 1979 crops of corn, sorghum, barley and oats:

– whether barley and oats should be included in the feed grains program (corn and sorghum are required to be in the program);

– whether there should be a set-aside requirement, and if so, the proportion of acreage to be set-aside;

– whether there should be a land diversion program, and if so, the extent of such diversion and level of payment (if land diversion payments are made, producers will be required to devote to approved conservation uses an acreage of cropland equal to the amount of such land diversion);

– if a set-aside or land diversion program is required, whether a limitation should be placed on planted acreage;

– the amount of the 1979 national program acreage (The U.S. feed grain stock objective is set at 5.7 per cent of world feed grain consumption, an amount judged to be our "fair" share of world feed grain stocks. Estimates of the national program acreage required to meet this objective are requested, together with appropriate explanatory material.);

– the reduction required, if any from previous year's harvested acreage to guarantee target price protection on total 1979 planted acreage (If the national program acreage for 1979 is less than the national harvested acreage for 1978, producers will be required to reduce acreage in 1979 to be eligible for full target price protection on 100 per cent of their acreage.);

– the loan and purchase levels for the 1979 crops of corn, sorghum, barley, oats and rye, including commodity eligibility, storage requirements, premiums and discounts;

– established (target) prices; and

– Commodity Credit Corporation minimum resale price and other related provisions necessary to carry out the loan purchase and payments programs.

For soybeans, comments are asked on the loan and purchase levels for the 1979 crop. The determinations include commodity eligibility, storage requirements, premiums and discounts.

Comments should be sent to the acting director, Production Adjustment Division, ASCS, USDA, Room 3630 South building, P.O. Box 2415, Washington, D.C. 20013. To be assured of consideration, the comments need to be received no later than Oct. 7.

WHAT'S NEW

AUTOMATIC CLUSTER REMOVER

The Westfalia Systemat ACR Automatic Cluster Remover has been introduced to U.S. and Canadian milk producers by the Westfalia Systemat Division of Centrico, Inc.

Westfalia Systemat ACR has solid-state sensors to monitor milk flow and give positive vacuum shut-off prior to gently removing the cluster. ACR can be used with any pipeline milking system. Full open design means no orifices to plug up, and the flow sensor cleans in place.

With ACR the milk producer can set delay times to catch every let-down for each individual cow. Let-down delay time at the start of milking is 90 seconds (sufficient time to attach and adjust the milker under the cow), and the low-flow limit will not activate until milk flow has dropped to .04-lb. per minute. A time delay is automatically triggered for a second let-down. Milking stops at just the right time for total milk recovery, and the cluster is withdrawn automatically and gently moved aside.

ACR is available in a standard unit (Type MA) and a unit for use with weigh jars (Type MAG). If desired, ACR can be operated in a manual mode by simply activating a switch on the control box.

The Westfalia Systemat Division of Centrico, Inc., offers the ACR Automatic Cluster Remover, along with the Vacurex Vacuum Regulator, through local distributors and dealers. Both milking machine components are part of the Westfalia Systemat line which has a 52-year record of worldwide success. The Division is located at 1270 Mark Street, Bensenville, Illinois.

'Omelet King' sets world record

ANAHEIM, Calif. – The American Egg Board's Howard Helmer came to town to set the world record for omelet making. And he chose the grand opening of the American Egg House at Disneyland where the cameras would record the event.

Howard's race for fame began with six pans, 500 cracked and beaten eggs, 30 minutes worth of sand in the hour glass and a host of supporters -- including Mickey Mouse.

Nationally known in the egg industry as the Omelet King, Howard was out to top the existing Guinness Book of World Records for omelet making. He needed 189 to top the record of 188 two-egg omeletes cooked in thirty minutes by Clement Raphael Freud of Nottingham, England.

The specially designed glass enclosed omelet cooking area of the American Egg House may have been the perfect setting for Howard's feat but it caused a problem for the omelet maker.

By the time he had flipped out number 15, beads of perspiration ran down his face, at number 50 he was drenched with sweat.

"I was sweating so hard, the perspiration was dripping into the hot pans and exploding all over the place," Howard recalled. "My biggest problem was trying to keep the hot popping grease off me."

But in spite of the popping grease, when the crowd chanted down the last ten seconds, a triumphant Howard emerged with 217 omelets to his credit, a new world's record and a special place for himself in the Guinness Book of World Records. The crowning touch came from Mickey Mouse who planted a sign proclaiming Howard as "World Champion Omelet Maker" in the last record breaking omelet.

Beef Industry Council chairman calls early 1980's 'crucial'

DES MOINES, Iowa - The early 1980's will be "crucial to the future of the entire beef industry," the chairman of the Meat Board's Beef Industry Council said recently.

William G. Amstein, Jr., a rancher and cattle feeder from Clifton, Kansas, remarked on the outlook for the industry at the Meat Board's 1978 Annual Meeting, August 20-23, in Des Moines.

"In the next few years, per capita supplies of beef are expected to decrease drastically, almost 25 per cent according to some observers," Amstein explained. "While this will bring needed profitability to the beef industry, we also have to be alert to the reaction of consumers to this unprecedented drop in beef supplies. Never before have people been forced to cut back so heavily on an important food in so short a time."

This is significant to the beef industry for two reasons, Amstein said.

"In the first place, consumers may seek substitutes for beef in the face of higher prices. They may do this reluctantly at first, but if these alternate foods start to gain acceptance in the American diet, the beef industry will be hard pressed to maintain its share of the food dollar.

"Secondly, decreased supplies are coming at a time when anti-beef forces are mounting the strongest attack on red meat that we have seen so far. Recent developments, especially the shifting of nutrition policy into the political area, indicate this has begun already.

"These two things combined make the early 1980's crucial to the future of the entire beef industry."

Eventually, the beef industry will move into another phase of the cattle cycle, bringing increased supplies to the consumer market, Amstein pointed out.

"We should work now to keep demand strong during times of short supply, so that when supplies do increase, we will have a profitable market," he said.

Despite these challenges, Amstein is "bullish" on the future of the industry. "We have an excellent product," he noted. "And we have the means of informing consumers that beef is a healthful, delicious and desirable food. It is up to us in the beef industry to support promotion and education programs that will get this job done."

Ag threatened by bureaucracy, says Shell Chemical Co. president

BILOXI, Miss. – "Government and the bureaucracy are the biggest threats to the economic well-being of farmers and all Americans," the president of Shell Chemical Company told members of the Mississippi Agricultural Chemicals Association at a meeting here last month.

The Shell executive, J.B. St. Clair, said the most important change needed to help modern agriculture compete in the future is a limit to government spending and the growth of the bureaucracy. "The rapid expansion of government regulations during the 1970s," St. Clair noted, "has increased the costs of farming and manufacturing, created tremendous inflation, reduced productivity, stifled innovation and devalued the dollar."

Not all regulations are bad, according to St. Clair, who pointed out that many regulations have fine and worthwhile objectives that everyone can support. "Increasingly, though, regulations are less than sensible", he said, "and many of them are costing millions of dollars with no tangible benefits."

St. Clair said the direct impact of agricultural regulation is insignificant compared to the potential threat regulation creates by limiting technological growth and energy development, which are so important to agricultural productivity.

"Evidence of the decline of technical innovation is very apparent today," St. Clair told the group. "Regulation has practically eliminated innovation in pharmaceuticals and has caused many manufacturers to totally abandon the search for new pesticides."

According to the Sehll executive, the energy problem and its solution are especially important for agriculture, which is much more vulnerable to fuel shortages than most of the rest of the nation.

St. Clair said government legislation inhibits development of new petroleum resources. "The bureaucracy basically tells energy managers when and where they can look for oil, where they can build pipelines and refineries, what products they can make and what their selling prices would be. It does almost nothing to encourage development of new oil and gas resources."

The strength of American agriculture is in danger, St. Clair predicted, unless these threats to energy and technology can be resolved. He said the U.S. currently enjoys a tremendous competitive edge in agriculture, and our country cannot afford to make its farmers uncompetitive in world markets by the pressure of excessive regulations.

Red tape cut for emergency loans

WASHINGTON, D.C. – Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland has given the Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) authority to make emergency loans to farmers as soon as loss from natural disaster is confirmed.

The Secretary abolished a time-consuming system in effect for several years that required county governments and state governors to request disaster loan service, then for the Secretary to designate counties where FmHA emergency loans could be made. This course was followed when damage assessment reports indicated the need for 25 or more farm emergency loans in a county.

Under the new, less time-consuming procedure, state directors of FmHA will authorize the agency's county officers to make emergency loans to any number of farmers showing a need for emergency credit to offset substantial loss caused by storm, flood, drought, or other natural disaster. State directors will act on the basis of available information including damage reports received from FmHA county offices. Designations of eligibility by county will no longer be required by the Secretary.

FmHA emergency loan services also are automatically available where a major disaster or emergency has been declared by the President.

Bergland's action to cut red tape from emergency loan procedure was taken under a provision of the Agricultural Credit Act of 1978, signed by President Carter Aug. 4. A regulation to implement the new procedure was published today in the Federal Register.

FmHA emergency loans are made to farmers lacking other sources of credit for recovery from natural disaster. Beginning Oct. 1, 1978, amounts of offsetting actual loss associated with production will be made at an interest rate of 5 per cent, and additional amounts at higher rates. Low-rate loans also are made to restore farm dwellings lost or damaged due to natural disaster.

preservation and one that lends itself well to activities like backpacking.

One large drawback of drying, however, was pointed out by Miss Keith: "You lose 90 per cent of the vitamins in drying because of exposure to air."

Research indicates that canning is the least expensive method of food preservation on a per pound basis. Foods can be preserved by canning at a cost of 1.9 cents per pound while drying costs 4.9 cents per pound and freezing costs 9.6 cents per pound.

Miss Keith noted, "People are conscientious about preserving food. They want to know the best way and the newest way."

While the food preservation exhibit seemed to be outdrawing other areas, it was clear that the entire family living tent was designed to meet present day interests. According to Carolyn Schrock, community resources development specialist at the University, the committee had worked hard to get "things that appeal to family's today." And it apparently paid off. "We have more people here than ever before."

Miss Schrock attributed the large crowds to "better exhibits, which are more action oriented." For instance, the computer heart risk booth was so popular there were people backed up for an hour on occasion to learn the chances of their incurring a heart attack. "People are very concerned about their health," Miss Schrock stated.

She said the many live demonstrations also contributed to the lively interest, with microwave oven cookery extremely popular.

The family living tent proved a real source of attraction for those who want the latest information from food preservation to how to save precious energy.

University of Maryland has rural real estate studies

COLLEGE PARK, Md. – Freshmen and transfer students in the College of Agriculture at the University of Maryland, have a new career training possibility available, beginning this fall. It is a rural real estate option in the Department of Agricultural and Resource Economics. This academic major is one of the few of its kind in the nation.

It is believed to be unique among colleges and universities throughout the Mid-Atlantic area and the Northeast, according to Dr. Ray A. Murray, Extension agricultural economist and professor of agricultural and resource economics at the College Park campus. Dr. Murray was involved in getting the rural real estate curriculum set up.

Farmer produce sold in Wash., D.C.

ANNAPOLIS, Md. -- Maryland farmers took their fresh fruit and vegetables to downtown Washington August 31st, for a gala "Open Air Market" which was set up off Independence Avenue.

Taking part were farmers from St. Mary's, Charles, Prince George's, Carroll, Frederick, Howard and Montgomery Counties. They brought a wide variety of freshly picked items to sell including: peaches, plums, corn, tomatoes, squash, cucumbers, pumpkins, watermelons, okra, beets, carrots, lima beans, stringbeans, potatoes, eggplants, peppers, herbs and others.

The program, a joint effort of USDA and the Maryland Department of Agriculture, was designed to dramatize the mutual benefits which take place when farmers who grow food get together directly with consumers.

According to Maryland Secretary of Agriculture, Young D. Hance, this activity clearly demonstrated to people in Washington just what Congress had in mind when it passed the Farmer-to-Consumer Direct Marketing Act two years ago in an effort to get more farmers into the direct marketing business.

Elro the robot was the center attraction

By SALLY BAIR
Staff Writer

UNIVERSITY PARK – "Excuse me, I'm having my picture taken. Cheese!" With those words, one very flustered Lancaster Farming reporter snapped a picture of what appeared to be a fat tin can with arms - and a lively personality!

Actually, the subject was "Elro," a robot featured in the family living tent at Ag Progress Days. Elro is no ordinary robot, and when he was "visiting" with his public, the area was packed with fascinated children and adults who watched and listened, but didn't quite believe what they were witnessing.

Elro is about five feet tall, rather round with arms but no legs, and he displayed a quick sense of humor and high intelligence as he answered the many questions put to him.

The questions were endless. "How'd they make you?" "That is classified information." "How old are you, Elro?" "I have no chronological age." "Do you have a girlfriend?" "No, but I'm looking around." "May I shake your hand?" "Affirmative - you have very soft hands." "Where do you hear?" "I have various audio sensory devices."

Sometimes a question was not to be answered, but always polite, and well-spoken, Elro would say, "That particular data is not in my present programming."

It was too much to expect that someone wouldn't inquire if he was acquainted with R2D2 and CP30 of Star Wars fame. Yes, he acknowledged, he knew them adding, "CP30 has a platinum body and mine is more metallic."

Once when he accidentally worked himself off the plywood runway which was his base of operations, Elro said the crowd, "Please excuse me, I must get into a higher gear and get back in position."

According to Carolyn Schrock, community resource development specialist at the University, the response to Elro was terrific all week. "It's adults as well as children. Adults especially get a kick out of him." She said that University President John Oswald had an extended conversation with Elro when he visited Ag Progress Days as did Republican Gubernatorial Candidate Richard Thornburg and his wife. Asked how Elro is able to respond so well to the questions, Miss Schrock, said, "He has got quite a program of tapes."

Elro never seemed to tire of the endless and repetitive questions - as a human might. However, even robots need a rest. After about 30-45 minutes of being totally surrounded by inquisitive people Elro would announce, "Excuse me, I must return to my charging place." And after he politely said "excuse me" about ten more times the crowd would slowly get the hint and begin to make a path for him. If anyone strayed into his path he said, "Excuse me, maam."

For his preseverance and patience, Dr. Thomas King, director of Extension, presented Elro with a metal certificate which read in part, "A certificate of appointment as professor for accepting the call to serve the University and the Commonwealth during Ag Progress Days."

Miss Schrock said, "We had hoped to have him walking outside the tent on the road, but the gravel got caught in his wheels." She speculated that if the road had been paved they could have accomplished their wish. Even robots have some limitations.

Some people tried to see if

Rebuild cattle herds, Bergland advises

MISSOULA, Mont. — Ranchers and farmers should begin to build up their herds rather than continuing to liquidate as they are doing now, Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland told a news conference here on Aug. 23.

"Unless beef producers start rebuilding their herds," the secretary said, "they are inviting another price disaster similar to the one experienced in the mid-1970's."

Bergland pointed out that the total cattle and calf inventory reached a record high of 132 million head in 1975 and decreased steadily to 116 million head early this year. The industry looks for a 110-112 million head herd by January 1, 1979.

"I can understand the temptation of ranchers to cash in on good profits after nearly three years of severe losses," he said, "but the favorable supply and demand situation for the next few years suggests it is a good time to take stock of some of the longer-run opportunities and plan realistically to maintain a stable market for farmers and ranchers."

There are two compelling reasons for doing this, Bergland said.

"One," he said, "is that farmers and ranchers seldom, if ever, recover their full losses during the limited life-span of favorable beef prices.

"Second," he continued, "excessively high beef prices, however justified to the producer, invite certain unfavorable consumer reaction and their political influence outweighs the clout of a relatively few producers."

Bergland commended the National Cattlemen's Association for its initiative in proposing an analytical system to monitor herd size and growth and make the information available to producers on a regular basis.

"The Department is going to strongly support this proposal by employing our resources to make it work effectively," the secretary declared.

"With this regular, up-to-date information," he pointed out, "producers can gear their production more closely to demand and create a more stable market.

"We hope such a program can blunt and even out the sharp price cycles in the livestock industry that have traditionally plagued producers for so many years," he said.

Bergland reaffirmed President Carter's pledges:

- no price controls;
- no further increased in imports this year and no total removal of import limitations next year; and
- support of a counter-cyclical program of beef imports.

It was once thought that Venetian glasses would shatter if poison was put in them.

Elro the robot

Elro could predict the future. "Are the Giants going to win the pennant?" "Negative."

"Who's your favorite baseball team." "Boston Red Sox." This response brought cries from the crowd that Elro wasn't too smart One visitor even accused him of being just a bag of bolts.

There was great skepticism among onlookers. Young people said, "There has to be someone in there." Others insisted that he was hooked up to a radio and some well-hidden person was carrying on the conversation.

But Elro was simply Elro, a very friendly robot who added a great deal of fun for those visiting the family living area of Ag Progress Days.
